

2014 VIRTUAL GENEALOGY FAIR

What's New at Ancestry from the National Archives

Quinton Atkinson

Director of Content
Acquisition and
Partner Development
Ancestry.com

How does Ancestry work with the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) to get records digitized, and what are some of the latest collections from NARA to appear on Ancestry? This presentation will look at some of the long-term NARA collections that Ancestry is focusing on, along with some insights into new collections, hidden gems, and even some sneak peaks.

Quinton Atkinson has worked the last 17 years in the Content Department at Ancestry. Currently the Director of Content Acquisition and Partner Development, Quinton has also spent a number of years working in the U.S. and International arena for Ancestry where he has travelled to the United Kingdom, Ireland, France, Germany, Italy, Australia, Mexico, and China – working with local and national archives. Quinton has been successful in developing alliances with many non-profit and government organizations around the world, most notably the National Archives and Records Administration. He works out of the Ancestry headquarters in Utah.