

Staff at the National Archives at College Park are moving approximately 525 cubic feet of Treasury Department records related to the American Civil War to the National Archives at Washington, DC. The records being transferred have a natural relationship and complement the holdings of the National Archives at Washington, DC. These series include records obtained (and in many cases) captured by Federal forces towards the end of the war. This relocation to Washington, DC will facilitate more efficient archival research and public access to these records.

You can check the status of the records by contacting the National Archives at Washington, DC in one of the following ways:

- Telephone: (202) 357-5400
