THE PRESIDENT'S INTELLIGENCE CHECKLIST

DECLASSIFIED UNDER AUTHORITY OF THE
INTERAGENCY SECURITY CLASSIFICATION APPEALS PANEL,
E.O. 13526, SECTION 5.3(b)(3)

ISCAP APPEAL NO. 2015-129, document no. 1
DECLASSIFICATION DATE: May 01, 2017

3 MAY 1962

1. Sino-Indian border dispute heating up

The Chinese Communists, in character, have reacted sharply to Indian Army attacks on their outposts in northern Ladakh by charging aggression and demanding that the Indians withdraw. Peiping has also put Delhi on notice that Chinese forces in Ladakh had been ordered to "resume" patrol activity, and that it is contemplating similar action along the entire frontier. Nehru yesterday had already reacted strongly to a previous Chinese note and public indignation over the latest Chinese charges will probably cause him to dig in his heels with a vengeance. More--and bigger--clashes between Indian and Chinese forces are likely.

2. Americans in South Vietnam

a. Whatever their reasons for releasing Sergeants Quinn and Groom, the Viet Cong are making the most, propaganda-wise, out of the affair. Hanoi is saying that the two were "pardoned" as an earnest of the "humanitarian policy" of the Communist-controlled South Vietnam liberation front.

b. Recently captured documents reveal that the Viet Cong have instructed at least some of its people to pick fights with Americans in order to "show the world that US troops are actually fighting in Vietnam."

3. Algeria

Algerian leaders, their tempers running dangerously close to the breaking point, have officially put responsibility directly on the French for the continuing OAS atrocities. They appear to be making a last ditch effort to keep the damper on the outbreak of large-scale Moslem reprisals as well as to head off demands that Algerian forces take matters into their own hands.

4. Burmese Government policy announced

General Ne Win has unfolded a rambling 28-point program billed as a "Burmese way to Socialism." Although chock-full of Communist-style clichés promising state control of practically everything in sight for the good of the people, it actually does not go beyond the goals already set forth in the constitution and subscribed to by all government leaders since Burma became independent in 1948. Stripped of its gobbledygook, Ne Win's program boils down to a declaration advising the Burmese that henceforth they will be living under an authoritarian, narrowly nationalistic government of the army, by the army--and perhaps primarily for the army.

5. Portugal

a. A post-mortem of the 1 May uprisings in Lisbon and Oporto bodes ill for the future serenity of the Salazar regime. By all accounts, the demonstrators were not only well organized, but showed courage and determination in facing up to the no-holds-barred tactics used by the police. They are thus likely to come back another day for a return engagement--possibly on 8 May, when more demonstrations are reportedly being planned for both cities.

b. Growing jumpiness over Angola is indicated by Lisbon's tendency to accept at face value all sorts of wild reports of outside interference, including some alleging that UN forces in the Congo are supplying the nationalists with both men and material.

50X1, E.O.13526

6. Nationalist China

Chargé Clough spent more than an hour yesterday urging Chinese Nationalist Vice President Ch'en Ch'eng to reconsider his government's intentions to raise and spend more money for military purposes, but got nowhere. Ch'en blandly minimized the amount of money involved, asserted that "no unnecessary" expenditures would be made, and claimed that the new tax measures had been carefully tailored to avoid any damage to Taiwan's economy. He was also evasive on the subject of coordinating military planning with the US.

7. Yugoslav-USSR relations

Their improvement is indicated by Yugoslavia's recent acquisition of Soviet military equipment (tanks and helicopters), something that has not happened since the big break. Belgrade officials have intimated that they are in the Soviet market for more hardware, but have sought to assure us that they are motivated entirely by economic reasons.

NOTES

- A. Pravda, noting the anniversary of the Laotian cease-fire (today), carried an interview with Prince Souphannouvong which was almost exclusively devoted to the old assertions that his side is as clean as a hound's tooth, and that Laos would have long since been happily reunited if it were not for the machinations of those American-supported rascals in Vientiane.
- B. We have a report which we cannot yet confirm that Soviet ships are en route to Morocco with arms, this time for the Moroccans rather than the Algerians.
- C. The present deployment of aircraft associated with the Soviet space program appears to point either to an imminent launching from Tyuratam, or to an effort to recover one or more of the three sections of Cosmos IV, which we know are still in orbit
- D. The contest for the Italian presidency should be settled today. At the moment, Foreign Minister Segni has the inside track.

LATE NOTE

Tshombé has temporarily postponed his trip to Leopoldville in order to hold preliminary discussions with UN Representative Gardiner.
