How does the Constitution check and balance power?

Dear Educator,

Thank you for your interest in the Constitution at Work distance learning program from the National Archives for grades 6–8! Prior to the program, students will be divided into groups to analyze primary sources that show historical examples of the Constitution at work. During the videoconference program, students will review a brief history of some of the problems created by the Articles of Confederation and how these problems led to the creation of the United States Constitution and a new central government. Students will use the documents from the pre-program activity to examine the powers of the Federal Government and discover how the Constitution created a stronger central government compared to the Articles of Confederation. They will also discover how the Constitution checks and balances power among the three branches of government and between the federal government and state governments.

Within this guide, you will find everything you need to prepare your class for the upcoming distance learning program, including a pre-program activity and what to expect during the videoconference with the National Archives.

During the videoconference, students will need:

- Materials from the Pre-Program Activity; these are essential to the success of the program and include:
  - Three different document sets and excerpts from the Constitution (assigned to 3 or 6 different groups of students)
  - The Document Analysis Worksheet (completed prior to the distance learning program)
  - The Constitution at Work Graphic Organizer (to be completed during the distance learning program)

If you have any questions, please contact us at distancelearning@nara.gov.

We look forward to seeing you soon!

Guidance for Pre-Program Activities

MEET THE DOCUMENTS (REQUIRED)

TIME: 45–60 MINUTES

MATERIALS:

- Document Analysis Worksheet (one per student or one per group)

  Please note that the Constitution at Work Graphic Organizer for student use during the distance learning program is included after the Document Analysis Worksheet in this packet so that you have the option of printing the student worksheets front/back.

- Document Sets: Each different set includes 2 documents, background information, and an excerpt of the Constitution. Document sets can be shared by each group, or each group member can receive a copy of all materials in the Document Set.

- Pencils/Highlighters

  Teacher Note: This activity is designed to familiarize students with the documents that they will be using during the videoconference with the National Archives. Divide students into 3 groups or 6 groups (depending on class size). If you have 6 groups, two different groups will review the same Document Set.

  In addition to this pre-program activity, it may be helpful to have your students review the three branches of government prior to the distance learning program.

  Depending on the amount of time you are able to allot for the pre-program lesson and distance learning program or your students’ comfort level when it comes to working with primary sources, you may decide to have your students analyze only one of the documents from each set. Please let your National Archives’ facilitator know in advance if you plan to have your students focus on the first or second document in each set. Here is a list of the documents included in each set. For your reference, we have provided an answer key for each case study at the end of this Teacher Guide (Pages 22–23).

Instructions for Students: During our distance learning program with the National Archives, we will explore how these documents show the Constitution at work. To prepare for our discussion, each group will analyze (one or two) different document(s). Each person (or group) should record notes for their assigned document(s) on the Document Analysis Worksheet. If students are receiving the Constitution at Work Graphic Organizer at this time, let them know that they should not complete it until the program with the Archives.

You are also receiving a page with background information on each document. Try to answer as many questions as you can on your Document Analysis Worksheet before looking at the background information.

Each group is also receiving an excerpt from the Constitution. After you analyze your documents, highlight the text of the Constitution that corresponds to each document. Make a note of the corresponding Article and Section of the Constitution on your worksheet.

DOCUMENT 1
One day after the attack on Pearl Harbor, President Franklin D. Roosevelt addressed a Joint Session of Congress, pronounced December 7 “a date which will live in infamy,” and asked Congress for a formal declaration of war against Japan. This tally sheet records the votes in the House of Representatives on the resolution for a declaration of war against Japan; it was adopted 388–1. Jeannette Rankin, representative from Montana, was the only member of Congress to vote “no.” After the Senate also voted to declare war on Japan 82-0, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the official declaration and the United States entered World War II.

DOCUMENT 2
The first appropriations act passed by the new Congress was signed into law on September 29, 1789. In an appropriations act, Congress decides the budget for the government each year. The appropriations bill must be approved by the House of Representatives and the Senate before it is sent to the president to be signed into law. This appropriations act sets a budget of $639,000 to cover the Federal Government’s expenses for that year.

President Harry S. Truman signed Executive Order 9981 on July 26, 1948. This order banned the segregation of African Americans in the Armed Forces. Before this executive order, the military did not allow African American and white soldiers to serve in the same regiment. President Truman’s order also established the President’s Committee on Equality of Treatment and Opportunity in the Armed Services to work with the military to ensure integration.

EXECUTIVE ORDER

ESTABLISHING THE PRESIDENT’S COMMITTEE ON EQUALITY OF TREATMENT AND OPPORTUNITY IN THE ARMED SERVICES

WHEREAS it is essential that there be maintained in the armed services of the United States the highest standards of democracy, with equality of treatment and opportunity for all those who serve in our country’s defense:

NOW, THEREFORE, by virtue of the authority vested in me as President of the United States, by the Constitution and the statutes of the United States, and as Commander in Chief of the armed services, it is hereby ordered as follows:

1. It is hereby declared to be the policy of the President that there shall be equality of treatment and opportunity for all persons in the armed services without regard to race, color, religion or national origin. This policy shall be put into effect as rapidly as possible, having due regard to the time required to effectuate any necessary changes without impairing efficiency or morale.

2. There shall be created in the National Military Establishment an advisory committee to be known as the President’s Committee on Equality of Treatment and Opportunity in the Armed Services, which shall be composed of seven members to be design-nated by the President.

3. The Committee is authorized on behalf of the President to examine into the rules, procedures and practices of the armed services in order to determine in what respect such rules, procedures and practices may be altered or improved with a view to carrying out the policy of this order. The Committee shall confer and advise with the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary Excerpt from the Constitution of the United States, Article 2, Sections 2-3

Section 2. The President shall be Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States, and of the Militia of the several States, when called into the actual Service of the United States; he may require the Opinion, in writing, of the principal Officer in each of the executive Departments, upon any Subject relating to the Duties of their respective Offices, and he shall have Power to grant Reprieves and Pardons for Offences against the United States, except in Cases of Impeachment.

He shall have Power, by and with the Advice and Consent of the Senate, to make Treaties, provided two thirds of the Senators present concur; and he shall nominate, and by and with the Advice and Consent of the Senate, shall appoint Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls, Judges of the supreme Court, and all other Officers of the United States, whose Appointments are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by Law: but the Congress may by Law vest the Appointment of such inferior Officers, as they think proper, in the President alone, in the Courts of Law, or in the Heads of Departments.

The President shall have Power to fill up all Vacancies that may happen during the Recess of the Senate, by granting Commissions which shall expire at the End of their next Session.

Section 3. He shall from time to time give to the Congress Information of the State of the Union, and recommend to their Consideration such Measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient; he may, on extraordinary Occasions, convene both Houses, or either of them, and in Case of Disagreement between them, with Respect to the Time of Adjournment, he may adjourn them to such Time as he shall think proper; he shall receive Ambassadors and other public Ministers; he shall take Care that the Laws be faithfully executed, and shall Commission all the Officers of the United States.

On May 17, 1954, Chief Justice Earl Warren delivered the unanimous U.S. Supreme Court ruling in the landmark civil rights case Brown v. Board of Education of Topeka. Although this decision is commonly known as “Brown v. Board” this decision applied to four cases grouped together. The Court found that state laws that permitted or required the segregation of public schools based on race violated the 14th Amendment of the Constitution. The decision marked the end of the “separate but equal” precedent set by the Supreme Court nearly 60 years before in Plessy v. Ferguson. In another part of this document (not included in your excerpt) Chief Justice Warren wrote, “We conclude that, in the field of public education, the doctrine of ‘separate but equal’ has no place. Separate educational facilities are inherently unequal.”

A joint resolution is a formal opinion adopted by both houses of the legislative branch. A constitutional amendment must be passed as a joint resolution before it is sent to the states for ratification. This joint resolution proposes an amendment to the Constitution that would extend the right to vote to citizens 18 years of age and older. It is signed by Carl Albert, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and Allen Ellender, the President of the Senate Pro Tempore. The amendment was officially ratified by the states on July 1, 1971.

S. J. Res. 7

Ninety-second Congress of the United States of America

AT THE FIRST SESSION

Begun and held at the City of Washington on Thursday, the twenty-first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and seventy-one

Joint Resolution

Proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States extending the right to vote to citizens eighteen years of age or older.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled (two-thirds of each House concurring therein), That the following article is proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of the Constitution when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States within seven years from the date of its submission by the Congress:

“Article —

“Section 1. The right of citizens of the United States, who are eighteen years of age or older, to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of age.

“Sec. 2. The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.”

Earl Warren
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Allen J. Dulles
President of the Senate.
Excerpts from the Constitution of the United States; Article 3, Sections 1-2; Article 5

Article 3.

Section 1. The judicial Power of the United States, shall be vested in one supreme Court, and in such inferior Courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish. The Judges, both of the supreme and inferior Courts, shall hold their Offices during good Behaviour, and shall, at stated Times, receive for their Services, a Compensation, which shall not be diminished during their Continuance in Office.

Section 2. The judicial Power shall extend to all Cases, in Law and Equity, arising under this Constitution, the Laws of the United States, and Treaties made, or which shall be made, under their Authority;—to all Cases affecting Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls;—to all Cases of admiralty and maritime Jurisdiction;—to Controversies to which the United States shall be a Party;—to Controversies between two or more States;— between a State and Citizens of another State, —between Citizens of different States, —between Citizens of the same State claiming Lands under Grants of different States, and between a State, or the Citizens thereof, and foreign States, Citizens or Subjects.

In all Cases affecting Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls, and those in which a State shall be Party, the supreme Court shall have original Jurisdiction. In all the other Cases before mentioned, the supreme Court shall have appellate Jurisdiction, both as to Law and Fact, with such Exceptions, and under such Regulations as the Congress shall make.

The Trial of all Crimes, except in Cases of Impeachment, shall be by Jury; and such Trial shall be held in the State where the said Crimes shall have been committed; but when not committed within any State, the Trial shall be at such Place or Places as the Congress may by Law have directed.

Article 5.

The Congress, whenever two thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose Amendments to this Constitution, or, on the Application of the Legislatures of two thirds of the several States, shall call a Convention for proposing Amendments, which, in either Case, shall be valid to all Intents and Purposes, as Part of this Constitution, when ratified by the Legislatures of three fourths of the several States, or by Conventions in three fourths thereof, as the one or the other Mode of Ratification may be proposed by the Congress; Provided that no Amendment which may be made prior to the Year One thousand eight hundred and eight shall in any Manner affect the first and fourth Clauses in the Ninth Section of the first Article; and that no State, without its Consent, shall be deprived of its equal Suffrage in the Senate.
Guidance for the Videoconference Program

MATERIALS:

- Document Sets, including excerpts from the Constitution
- Completed Document Analysis Worksheet
- The Constitution at Work Graphic Organizer
- Pencil

Teacher Note: Students should sit with their document groups and have their document sets, excerpts of the Constitution, and document analysis worksheets from the pre-program activity available during the videoconference program. Students will use their documents to complete the Graphic Organizer and to share their findings. Students will be encouraged to add notes to their graphic organizers while each group reports its findings.

Post-Program Activities

Students will need:

- Constitution at Work Graphic Organizer
- Access to the complete text of the Constitution, you can find a transcription here: www.archives.gov/founding-docs/constitution-transcript
- Access to DocsTeach.org

After the distance learning program with the National Archives, rearrange student groups so that students meet with members of the other groups and can share information to complete their Graphic Organizers.

Remind students that during the distance learning program with the National Archives, students reviewed just a handful of documents that show the Constitution at work. As a writing assignment, challenge students to find a new document on DocsTeach.org to connect to the Constitution. Instruct students to find the corresponding text in the Constitution and explain how their new document answers one or both of the questions they explored during the program;

What powers does the Constitution give the Federal Government?

How does the Constitution check and balance power?

You may want to recommend that students begin on the Constitution DocsTeach.org page to browse primary sources on Constitutional topics: https://www.docsteach.org/topics/constitution

Additional Activities from DocsTeach.org

These three activities from DocsTeach.org will help students review concepts from the Constitution at Work Distance Learning Program.

Separation of Powers or Shared Powers
Students identify and draw conclusions about the relationship between the legislative, executive and judicial branches by critically analyzing primary sources.

Checks and Balances in Action
Students analyze documents that span the course of American history to see examples of “checks and balances” among the legislative, executive, and judicial branches in action.

Congress in Article I of the Constitution
In this activity developed by the Center for Legislative Archives, students match primary source documents to clauses from Article I of the United States Constitution that detail six powers of Congress. This study reinforces the idea of separation of powers between branches by highlighting six of the powers the Founders specifically granted to Congress.

The Center for Legislative Archives
The Center for Legislative Archives preserves and makes available the historical records of the U.S. House of Representatives and the U.S. Senate. Congressional records used in this distance learning program include the Tally Sheet of the House of Representatives for Declaration of War Against Japan and President Johnson’s nomination of Thurgood Marshall to the Supreme Court.

The Center also offers wonderful resources for educators on representative democracy, how Congress works, and the important role Congress has played throughout American history, including lesson plans such as Constitution Scavenger Hunt with Political Cartoons, and Teaching the Six Big Ideas of the Constitution, as well as the Congress Creates the Bill of Rights mobile app and eBook.

Celebrating Constitution Day
September 17 is designated as Constitution Day and Citizenship Day to commemorate the signing of the U.S. Constitution in Philadelphia on September 17, 1787. Learn more about the U.S. Constitution through our public programs, family activities, and online resources.
