Article I

Section 1. The executive Power shall be vested in one President of the United States of America. The President shall hold his Office during the Term of four Years, and together with the Vice President shall be originally elected, as follows:

Each State shall appoint, in such Manner as the Legislature thereof shall direct, a Number of Electors, equal to the whole Number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress; but each State shall have one Vote. The Electors shall meet in Ballot in the several States, and vote by Ballots for two Persons, one of whom at least shall not be an Inhabitant of the same State with themselves. And they shall mark the Person voted for, in a manner to be prescribed by the Legislature of the State, which shall also appoint the place of Meeting. The Senators and Representatives before named shall be elected of the whole Number of Electors in each State, and the Persons chosen for Representatives shall be elected for the Term of two Years, and the Persons chosen to fill the Vacancies shall be elected for the Remainder of the Term for which they were appointed. No Person shall be a Candidate for any再 read of Office during the Terms for which he shall have been chosen, and no Person holding any Office under the United States, shall be appointed to any of the Offices of the United States, which shall be the Subject of a Controversy between two or more States. No Senator or Representative shall, during the Time for which he shall be elected, be appointed to any Office of Profit or Trust under any State; but this Rule shall not apply to any Office of Honora-
