The Bush Presidential Library has completed systematic processing of the files of the National Narcotics Border Interdiction System (NNBIS), 1983-1989. The Bush Vice Presidential records proposed for opening are cover sheets, correspondence, press releases, printed material, remarks, and reports. These materials consist of Office of the Vice President cover sheets and internal correspondence which route other documents; and other internal correspondence arranging NNBIS administrative matters, such as meetings, travel, drug war games, inter-agency cooperation on interdiction and law enforcement issues, and operational funding. There is also external correspondence, such as letters of appreciation from Vice President Bush to departing NNBIS personnel, and letters from private citizens providing unsolicited opinions on issues such as mandatory drug testing, legalization of drugs, and the military's role in interdiction. Additional materials are press releases which include statements by NNBIS on drug interdiction games, the objectives of NNBIS, and the general results of interdiction operations; and printed materials which contain newspaper clippings on issues such as drug testing, international cooperation to prevent trafficking, interdiction operations, and drug trafficking and interdiction in various Caribbean and Latin American countries. Finally, there are remarks by President Reagan and Vice President Bush at various functions related to drug interdiction; and unclassified reports which include NNBIS briefings and reports to Congress on interdiction operations and law enforcement strategy, Department of Defense papers on drug enforcement, and U.S. Customs Service reports on information gathering.
