

Kathy Andrews

Kathy Andrews is the Senior Director of Security for Northrop Grumman's Defense Systems Sector, leading a team responsible for all aspects of security across the NGDS $9B portfolio and multiple sector sites. With over 40 years of experience—including 38 years in security leadership—Kathy Andrews has served both the Intelligence Community (IC) and Department of Defense (DOD) and has supported defense and intelligence organizations in the UK and Australia.

Kathy Andrews has been an Industry member of NISPPAC since 2023 and chairs its Physical Security Working Group. Previously, Kathy Andrews chaired the AIA Industrial Security Committee after three years as Deputy Chair, and spent six years as Chairperson and principal industry liaison with NSA for the ISWG NSA Focus Group.

Kathy Andrews holds a Bachelor's degree in Business Management from the University of Maryland, College Park. Over her career, Kathy Andrews has held various management roles in Security at Northrop Grumman for more than 30 years, and has also worked at Johns Hopkins Applied Physics Lab, Essex Corp, L-3 Communications/Titan Group, Sybase, and as a Government Civilian at NSA.

