Background Information

The objective of Federal Power Act Projects is to encourage hydropower production where it is compatible with National Forest purposes and ensure that the planning, construction, and operation of hydropower projects protect and effectively utilize National Forest System lands and resources.

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) is responsible for National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) compliance for projects licensed by FERC. FERC is usually the Federal lead agency for licensed projects when an environmental impact statement (EIS) is to be prepared. It is the responsibility of the authorized officer to request to designate the Forest Service as a cooperating agency when National Forest System lands are affected.

The Forest Service is responsible for NEPA compliance for hydropower projects on National Forest System lands exempt from a FERC license.

The Federal Land Policy and Management Act (FLPMA) of October 21, 1976 (43 U.S.C. 1761-1771) authorizes the Forest Service to issue special use authorizations for hydropower projects located on National Forest System lands. However, the Energy Policy Act of October 24, 1992 (43 U.S.C. 1761(d)) amended FLPMA by providing that a special use authorization is not required for any existing project, whether licensed or exempted, that was not subject to an authorization under FLPMA prior to October 24, 1992. Many projects in existence on October 24, 1992, did not have FLPMA special use authorizations and, therefore, are exempt from a Forest Service special use authorization requirement in the future. A special use authorization is required for new hydropower projects proposed after October 24, 1992.
