Japan Untied Overseas Development Assistance Program

Japan's foreign aid program presents a unique opportunity for U.S. suppliers to join with the Government of Japan and with Japanese business in assisting developing countries in their economic progress. The commercial significance of Japan's Official Development Assistance (ODA) has exciting potential for American companies, which are now more competitive than ever.

With the chances of success increasing, more and more U.S. companies are participating in projects financed by Japan's ODA. ODA projects focus on sectors where American firms are highly competitive. These areas include power generation and transmission, railway engineering and equipment, telecommunications, industrial manufacturing, water resource management, and environmental control. A concerted effort by industry to understand the ODA procedure could result in heightened U.S. participation.

1. Subject/Country Files

Correspondence generated by ODA relating to business firms or client companies. The files consist of incoming and outgoing correspondence, cables, reports, memorandums, and ODA program development records.

PERMANENT. Break files annually and transfer to WNRC in cubic-foot blocks when 3 years old. Transfer to the National Archives when 20 years old.

2. Project Files

Files relating to individual projects that are financed by Japan's untied ODA.

PERMANENT. Break files annually and transfer to WNRC in cubic-foot blocks when 3 years old. Transfer to the National Archives when 20 years old.

3. Chronological (Chron) Files
