1. Provisional Patent Applications (Revised)

Provisional Patent Applications are records regulated by the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), effective June 8, 1995 and the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA). These records may be relied upon, in an application that issues as a patent, to establish a U.S. filing date for an invention, among other things. Each application includes a cover sheet identifying it as a provisional application. The Provisional Patent Application may be used by examiners to determine the earliest effective filing date for a patent application.
