Background Information

The functional category for records in this request is governed by AR 350-53, Comprehensive Soldier and Family Fitness Program. The Army Fit system supports the comprehensive soldier and family fitness program. Resilience training education programs provide personal development and self-assessment for military and deployable civilians. Training is voluntary for family members.

Data originates from personnel, healthcare, and training systems. Outputs are screens of information and survey results which are used by analytic groups. Survey results do not become part of the soldier official personal or medical file. The system began collecting information in January 2014.
