2.	Individual Academic Records Background Data: Job Number NC1-AU-78-131 applied only to individual academic record files retired before January 1, 1981. This request applies to records created after that date. The Army is very much concerned with its ability to support the individual soldier, both during active service and thereafter. An important aspect of this support is insuring the availability of records that are vital to the service member's rights and interests throughout life. Information from these files can often be used by such individuals to obtain credit for past training. Individual academic records may be required by the individual at any point in the military career or thereafter. Many individuals continue their education after they retire from the Army. While there is no certain, identifiable time span in which such records may be required, we have determined that 40 years is the minimum acceptable retention period. Electronic copies created on electronic mail and word processing systems will be deleted after recordkeeping copy has been produced or when no longer needed for reference, updating, revision, or dissemination. Agency, NR, new mw
