BATSS performs scheduling of multiple resources for training events and is used to plan and manage requirements such as transportation and ammunition. The end-users are typically schedulers, approvers and administrators in the operations division of the US Army Infantry Center who develop and coordinate schedules, lessons, classes and assign resources. Once the training event has taken place, records are marked as "inactive" in the database. System contains records from October 2004 to present. Title Benning Automated Training Scheduling System (BATSS) Master File Authority. TBD PA: TBD Description The system contains lists of resources (ranges, ammunition, rifles, buses, and transportation, classrooms and similar resources), table of classes, lessons, templates and user data such as user ID, email address and telephone number. The outputs of the BATSS system are class schedules with associated requirements. Outputs are transferred to the Maintenance Inventory Tracking System (MITS). Disposition KN.
