Row 1: A REQUEST FOR IMMEDIATE DISPOSAL, Division of Research Resources, Animal Resources Program Branch, In 1955 the Governments of the United States and India entered into an agreement to permit continued exportation of rhesus monkeys from India to the U.S. solely for purposes of medical research and for testing and production of polio vaccine. The agreement remained in effect until March of 1978 when the government of India imposed a total ban on exportation of rhesus monkeys. 1. Rhesus Monkey Certificates 1956-1978. Under the agreement, individuals who desired to import rhesus monkeys had to submit certification of the need for the monkeys in medical research or polio vaccine, the number of animals needed, and the project period along with a letter describing the project. The certificate, when approved by NIH and the Surgeon General of the U.S., served as legal authorization for the export/import of the animals.
