Internal agency concurrences will be provided No

Background Information Records are maintained in an online tracking system that allows Capacity Building Centers to record data about the universal, constituency, and tailored services they provide to states, tribes, and Court Improvement Programs. The current tracking system, CapTRACK, captures information on products and events and individualized tailored services including assessment and work plan data and tailored service delivery data.

Data is used to monitor Centers' service provision and to conduct Center-specific and cross-site evaluations on Center services, collaboration, and service outcomes. Evaluation data is shared regularly with the Children's Bureau (CB) and is used to respond to periodic requests from Congress.

	Universal and Constituency Services include products and events. Centers record information on the number and characteristics of the products they produce and the events they provide to support capacity building among multiple jurisdictions. A product is a resource or tool that is intended to transfer knowledge and facilitate learning that is created with the intent to build the capacity of multiple jurisdictions. Products can be publications (e.g., tipsheet, brief, guide, article) or digital products, such as videos, audio podcasts, or a recorded event. Centers provide a description of each product produced including the date of completion, the areas addressed by the product, the audiences targeted, involvement of other organizations in product development, and expected outcomes of the product. An event is a service activity that involves live interaction between a Center representative and an audience representing participants from multiple jurisdictions. An event is typically intended to increase jurisdiction awareness, transfer knowledge, facilitate learning or promote peer connections. Centers provide a description of each event held including the date of the event, the hours of service provided, the areas addressed by the event, the professional role of those that attended the event, and involvement of other organizations or stakeholders in the event, and the expected outcomes of the event.
