DHS Foreign Access Management System (DFAMS)

NARA # 11-503-09-1

To meet the Department's needs, while managing risks posed by foreign visitors, the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) Office of Security, Counterintelligence & Investigations Division (CIID) has established the DHS Foreign Visitor vetting process. CIID's mission is to conduct defensive activities to identify, analyze, and defend against espionage, foreign intelligence service elicitation activities, and terrorist collection efforts directed against DHS in order to protect critical national assets from adversarial intelligence threats. CIID is responsible for establishing a foreign visitor vetting program, conducting appropriate records reviews, recommending countermeasures, and tracking all foreign visitors throughout the Department. In order to fulfill this mandate, CIID manages a web based system called the DHS Foreign Access Management System (DFAMS).

The DFAMS database is used in conjunction with a policy requiring all employees and contractors to report visits or meetings to the Department by foreign visitors. CIID initiates indices checks through appropriate intelligence community databases to determine if the foreign visitor is a known or suspected intelligence officer, believed to have been co-opted by a foreign intelligence service or possibly associated with a terrorist organization.

CIID does not approve or disapprove any foreign visit. CIID vets foreign visitors and provide risk-based assessments to the visit sponsor. Component heads are the final approval authority for foreign visits. The vetting performed by CIID is accomplished in order to determine the risk to the Department, to help mitigate the risk the visit may pose to U.S. national security, and so CIID can fulfill the mandate to track and analyze foreign visits to DHS facilities.
