1.	CIVIL DIVISION, DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE: SWINE FLU ADMINISTRATIVE CLAIM FILE SYSTEM An electronic records system, used primarily for tracking and calendaring purposes, that contains a variety of information about the nature, course, handling, and disposition of over 4,000 administrative claims filed against the United States for alleged injuries resulting from inoculations received through the National Swine Flu Immunization Program of 1976. Many claims proceeded to become complaints in the federal courts. The system consists of a data base containing information on claimant identity; amount claimed; attorneys involved; nature of injury; physical examinations; and the nature and date of complaints, answers, motions, responses, rulings, depositions, interrogatories, requests for admissions, requests for documents, hearings, trials, settlement offers, and dispositions. Information on the system duplicates information in administrative claim and
