In addition to its tracking capabilities, the database is also used as a repository for data samples that are audited for data quality. The database holds sample data for conducting audits, and after the data is audited, the data is deemed as either Supporting Audit Findings Data (containing compliance issues, risk assessments, survey results, training data, response times, record errors or untimely record data) or Non-Supporting Audit Findings Data (e.g. containing no errors).

1. Inputs

There are four types of inputs into the CJIS database: source records, audit-related data, tracking of data related to special projects, and contact information.

a. Source Records

DISPOSITION: TEMPORARY.

DELETE/DESTROY three (3) years after related Final Audit Report is issued.

b. Audit Data Inputs

DISPOSITION: See Item F, 2a and 2b for disposition.
