1. Federal Regulation Development Documents - Consist of textual documents containing federal regulations pertaining to the Federal Bureau of Prisons, as published in the Federal Register and the Code of Federal Regulations, including public comments. Public comments contain personally identifiable information given voluntarily by commenters as part of the Federal regulatory development process pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U.S.C. § 552, et seq.). The material is arranged by relevant corresponding Bureau policy number, subject, and date of publication in the Federal Register. This record collection is expected to be absorbed by a government-wide automation initiative known as eRulemaking, which is expected to become a federal depository for agency rules material
