Time Use Diary Survey Records were used to study the feasibility of conducting a time-use survey to collect estimates of the amount of non-market work performed in the United States. The field test involved administering the standard time-use instrument and the "enhanced" instrument to randomly selected respondents, using a telephone survey mode of administration. The data was collected from February through August of 1997. The sample size was 827 completed interviews.

Inclusive Dates: 2/97 - 8/97

Volume: 12 cubic feet

Arrangement: By ID numbers sorted by standard version (green) and enhanced version (yellow).
