Background Information The Sounding Board was an ideation site for employees of the Department of State that existed from February 2009 to August 2017. Its mission was to allow all State Department employees to have an ongoing conversation on new, smarter, and more effective ways of enabling our nation's foreign policy goals. The Sounding Board was maintained and run by the Executive Secretariat's Research & Design Center (S/ES-R&D). The BrightIdea software was used to manage the increasing number of submissions. The retired data is maintained in a SQL database.
