   Series H and K registration stubs were microfilmed as they were received by transmittal shipment from the Federal Reserve Banks. Following assignment of the sales to bond owner accounts the original stubs were retained for use as a means of post-auditing interest payments. Retention of these records was approved under Item 19-c of Comprehensive Records Schedule No. 1 dated July 29, 1955. However, as a result of conversion to Electronic Data Processing, these records have no further reference value. The bond and owner identification data reflected in these records is also contained in a file of duplicate stubs which is scheduled for permanent retention. Microfilm records are also available.

   Authority is requested to dispose of Series H and K original bond registration stubs with issue dates from May 1952 through December 1967.
