	Items 6 and 7 are magnetic tape files. These tapes are not the record copies and are used for the creation of the paper copies only. 5 United States Code 552a (Privacy Act of 1974, Public Law 93-579, 88 Stat 1896), particularly subsection (b) and 31 CFR 323.2 (b) cover the confidentiality of these records. 6. Registered Accounts Master Files - These cyclic files are the record of all government securities both active and inactive. They give the life cycle of a security in terms of ownership and dividends. They can be accessed by name, registration number or Social Security number. These files give the record of securities, their owners and payments made by the government. DESTROY WHEN SUPERSEDED BY CREATION OF NEW TAPE. 7. Division Magnetic Tape Files - These files contain all other magnetic tapes for the Bureau's computer programs. Included in this file are the following items: a. Banks and Institutions Survey File - These files give the Government Securities currently held by banks and institutions by amount and type of security. They give no ownership information. These files are used by the Deputy Assistant Secretary for Debt Management to ascertain how best to market securities. b. Treasury and Agency Security Accounting System Files - These files give the flow of government security transactions passing through Federal Reserve Banks. These transactions are maintained on tape by amount, denomination and loan number. There are no personal identifiers. This file serves as the Federal Reserve's daily "check-book" regarding securities. c. Coupon Audit Recap Master File - These files show the flow of government bearer security transactions through Federal Reserve Banks. They give the life cycle of bearer securities in the same fashion as the Registered Accounts System with the exception that there is no name, number nor record of intended payment. The securities are recorded by amount, denomination and loan number. They keep a record of securities outstanding and those coupons that have been redeemed on the outstanding securities.

d.	Cash Balance Forward Master File - This file gives the total cash flow for security transactions and identifies them by loan code. It measures daily security transactions by the sale of securities, interest outlays and redeemed securities. It gives the daily debt figure and accounts for cash expended and received.
e.	United States Savings Bond System File - These files show the flow of government E and H series bonds passing through the Federal Reserve Banks. The transactions are maintained on tape by amount, denomination and loan number. There are no personal identifiers. This is the Federal Reserve's daily "checkbook" regarding bonds.
f.	Federal Housing Administration (FHA) System Master Files - These files give the flow of government securities purchased by the Federal Housing Administration. The transactions are maintained on tape by amount, denomination and loan number. There are no personal identifiers. This is FHA'S "checkbook" regarding securities. If, for example, FHA sells more securities than it redeems, FHA would owe the Treasury money. This money would be sent in daily. DESTROY WHEN 400 DAYS OLD.
