JUSTIFICATION FOR PERMANENT RETENTION

For over 30 years, NCLIS has been and is an independent Commission that provides advice to the President, Congress and other entities regarding the library and information needs of the American public. NCLIS conducts analyses, studies, surveys, holds hearings, appraises adequacies and deficiencies, issues publications, tracks and responds to related legislation. The Librarian of Congress and Director of IMLS are both members along with 14 others. Until the United States recently rejoined UNESCO, NCLIS was also the main conduit for representing the United States at international library activities. As an example of topics covered by the Commission for Congress and the White House, NCLIS has managed two White House conferences on libraries, held hearings and developed reports on children and the internet, access by American Natives, seniors, people living in rural areas, and people with disabilities; global literacy, assessments of information dissemination; potential closure of NTIS, and most recently a briefing on the public library in communicating to citizens about disasters. NCLIS also provided input to the reauthorization of the Library Services and Technology Act and manages the Network for Collection of Educational Statistics. As a result, we believe that our budget files, listed in Item 1 of this schedule, which contain funding proposals, legislative proposals, presentations to Congress and OMB, and support by various national and international personages, the public and interested groups, represent an overview of the government's funding, emphasis, and efforts in national library management and therefore should be preserved.
