The National Economic Commission is a bi-partisan panel established by PL 100-203, which was signed by President Reagan on December 22, 1987. Composed of Members of Congress and private citizens, its purpose is to make specific recommendations to the President and Congress on equitable methods to reduce the Federal budget deficit. The Commission held six public hearings, several briefings confined to single topics, and invited written submissions from private citizens and organizations. It produced its Final Report on March 1, 1989.

1. Hearings.
Speakers at the Commissions's public hearings usually included well-known individuals such as Alan Greenspan and William Brock. Documentation consists of transcripts, written statements submitted by the presentors, and background papers prepared by the staff. Arranged by date of hearing. Volume: 1.5 cubic feet.
Disposition: PERMANENT. Transfer to the National Archives upon approval of this schedule.
2. Briefings.
The format is very similar to that for the hearings; briefings usually did not involve all the Commissioners and were confined to a single subject. Documentation consists of staff papers, submitted statements for all meetings and
