National Commission on Responsibilities
for Financing Postsecondary Education
Attachment to SF-115

In 1986, as part of the reauthorization of the Higher Education Act, the National Commission on Responsibilities for Financing Postsecondary Education was created. The legislation chartering the Commission, authored by Senator James Jeffords of Vermont, suggested that an examination of the nation's long-term higher education financing needs was in order. The mandate of the Commission, as spelled out in the law, was to reexamine the nature and operation of the current system of responsibilities for financing and to develop recommendations for its long-term restructuring as necessary.

Because of technical problems related to the legislative process, the Commission was not allowed to begin operating until fiscal year 1991. The bipartisan Commission was comprised of nine members. Three members were presidential appointees, three were appointed by the president of the Senate, and three appointed by the Speaker of the House. Members of the Commission met for the first time in February of 1991.

Throughout its two-year life span, Commission members met 14 times, which included five regional hearings, two seminars and a press conference.

The Commission released its Final Report to the President and U.S. Congress on February 3, 1993. It is expected that the recommendations contained in this report will form the basis for legislative proposals in the area of restructuring the current system of higher education financing.
