9A1. File plan. This is the first file item in a file station. It reflects all program and nonprogram records maintained by an office.

Cut off with related files. Destroy when all related files are destroyed or retired.

9A2 - 9A4. Reserved.

9A5. Suspense files. A suspense file consists of papers arranged in chronological order as a reminder that an action is required on a given date; a reply to an action is expected and if not received, should be traced on a given date; or a transitory paper is being held for 30 days or less and then may be destroyed. File numbers are not required on suspense file folders and drawer labels, nor are they required on papers included in suspense files. Suspense file folders are usually numbered 1 to 31--one for each day of the month. However, offices having a small volume of suspended material may need only two folders numbered 1-15 and 16-31. Additional monthly folders may be used temporarily to house suspended material due in the months ahead of the current suspense file. Examples of papers normally included in a suspense file and dispositions are:

a. A note or other reminder to submit a report or to take some other action.

Destroy after action is taken.

b. The file copy, or an extra copy of correspondence, filed by the date on which a reply is expected. Also includes copies of communications control records when used as suspense controls.

Withdraw papers when the reply is received or dispatched. If the suspense copy is an extra copy, or a communications control record, destroy it; if it is a file copy, incorporate it with other papers for file.

c. Transitory papers which may be destroyed on the suspended date.

Destroy papers on the suspense date.

9A6-9A9. Reserved.

OAD P 1820.2 CHGE

9A10. Correspondence locators. Copies of communications control records filed by source to show referrals of incoming correspondence, document registers, and other documents used for comparable purposes.

Document registers: Destroy 3 months after last entry.

Other records: Cut off in 3-month blocks, hold 3 months, and destroy.

Note.--Communications control records are usually kept in a file container behind alphabetical guide cards. The guide cards may be in complete A-Z sets for large volumes or they may be divided into two or three groupings, such as A-M and N-Z, when the volume is small. Two sets of these guide cards are needed, each preceded by a guide card indicating the quarterly period which it covers. At the end of 6 months, the control slips for the first 3 months are destroyed, thereby freeing the guide cards to be used for subsequent accumulations. Quarterly guide cards may be prepared in advance and used on a rotating basis; i.e., one filed with the current quarter, one with the quarter being held for 3 months, and the next two cards filed in the back to be used at the time of rotation.

The files in this appendix relate primarily to administrative and operational functions within an office, as distinguished from files relating to the performance of mission or program functions which are described in succeeding chapters and appendixes of this handbook. More specifically, office administrative files. (a) accumulate as a result of routine procedures which are required in, or are an inherent part of, normal housekeeping operations in any office; (b) relate to the acquisition and use of supplies, services, or administrative support from, or in conjunction with, the office responsible for providing them; and (c) provide a source of general and technical reference material for use within the office. Office administrative files are normally accumulated by individuals handling administrative matters for the office. I

9B1. Office administration. These are of four types: (1) documents created in the preparation of office procedures or comparable instructions that are applicable to internal administrative practices and operational details within the preparing office; (2) documents reflecting hours of duty and individual duties that do not have continuing applicability; (3) documents reflecting delegation of authority to take certain actions during the temporary absence of superiors, such as documents listing existing delegations and papers reflecting individual delegations, but excluding those relating to delegations formalized in the GSA directives system; and (4) documents used in orientations and briefings given to visitors and newly assigned individuals, such as photographs, transparencies, copies of handouts, and related records.

Destroy when superseded or obsolete.

9B2 - 9B4. Reserved.

9B5. Campaigns. Documents reflecting office participation in such matters as blood donation programs, savings bond drives, fund solicitations, and similar matters.

Cut off annually, ~~hold 1 year, and destroy.~~

9B6 - 9B9. Reserved.

9B10. Office financial files. Documents relating to the participation of offices in matters concerning the expenditure of funds incidental to the performance of program functions of the office. Included are travel cost estimates and notifications of availability of funds; receipts for, and other documents regarding the distribution of checks and savings bonds; similar documents; and related records.

destroy when 1 year old.
Cut off annually, ~~hold 1 year, and destroy.~~

9B11 - 9B14. Reserved.

9B15. Office information management files. These records consist of the file categories described below:

a. Office general information management. Documents relating to an office's involvement in management activities such as forms, directives, records, and reports management activities. Included are survey reports, inventory reports, correspondence, and related records. Excluded are records described below and records relating to the initiation of a specific form, directive, or report.

Cut off annually, ~~hold 1 year, and destroy.~~

OAD P 1820.2 CHGE

b. Records disposition. Documents reflecting the location and/or disposition of records retired or transferred out of an office. Included are Standard Form 135, Records Transmittal and Receipt; Optional Form 11, Reference Request - Federal Records Center; GSA Form 3170, Notice of Intent to Destroy Records, and related records.

Destroy when no longer needed for reference.

c. Records reports. Documents reflecting the preparation of reports for records management. Included are source documents, retained copies of reports, and similar records.

Cut off annually, ~~hold 2 years, and destroy.~~ destroy when 2 years old.

9B16 - 9B19. Reserved.

9B20. Staffing. Documents such as extracts from human resources surveys, worksheets used in preparing data for human resources surveys, and papers indicating personnel authorizations.

Destroy when superseded or canceled.

9B21 - 9B24. Reserved.

9B25. Office personnel files. These records consist of file categories described below:

a. Office personnel administration. Documents accumulated by operating officials in administering personnel matters for or about employees in the office. Included are papers concerning attendance at work, copies of attendance and overtime reports other than those maintained by time and attendance clerks, and notices of holidays and hours worked; notices about participation in athletic events and employee unions; notifications and lists of employees to receive Government medical services, including x-rays and immunizations; notices and lists of individuals to receive secretarial or other training; and comparable records.

b. Employee record cards. Copies of employee record cards providing complete information relative to employees, positions, personnel strength authorizations, and personnel actions in process, but not official employee cards maintained by personnel offices. Record cards for employees transferred within GSA will be forwarded to the gaining office. Record cards for employees who are separated for military service with restoration rights will be placed in the military service separation file described in d, below.

Destroy on separation of the employee.

Appendix 9-B

c. Individual personnel information. Documents accumulated on individual employees which are duplicated in, or not appropriated for inclusion in, official personnel folders, the position description file, or the pending personnel action request file. Included are notices of individuals' security clearances, employee security acknowledgments, retained copies of reports and other papers concerning individual injuries, letters of appreciation and commendation, papers indicating training received or assigned responsibilities, career development plans, affirmative action reports, EEO reports, and comparable records.

Review annually; destroy documents which are superseded or not applicable. Forward the entire file to the personnel office for review and disposition on separation of the employee.

d. Military service separation. Employee record cards used in considering position changes for employees separated for military service.

Return to employee record cards file (see b, above) on fulfillment of restoration obligation or destroy upon termination of restoration obligation, as applicable.

e. Office personnel registers. Documents used in accounting for office personnel and in controlling office visitors. Included are registers reflecting personnel arriving, departing, on leave, and on temporary duty travel.

Cut off in 6 month blocks, ~~hold 6 months, and destroy.~~ destroy when 6 months old.

f. Pending personnel actions. Operating officials' or suspense copies of requests for various personnel actions, such as accessions, position changes, pay rate changes, separations, and similar matters, including certifications required in connection with the GSA Equal Employment Opportunity Program.

Cut off annually, ~~hold 2 years, and destroy.~~ destroy when 2 years old.

g. Position descriptions. Extra copies of position descriptions of an office which are used in day-to-day supervisory relationships.

Destroy when the position description is superseded or the related position is abolished.

h. Standards of conduct. Documents relating to systems designed to ensure that all personnel fully understand the standards of conduct and ethics required of them, such as a system requiring the periodic reading of applicable directives and the signing of a document to indicate that the directives are understood.

Cut off annually, ~~hold 1 year, and destroy, or destroy~~ <sup>destroy when 1 year old or</sup> after the next application of the system, whichever is sooner.

i. Time and attendance records. These files are accumulated by time and attendance clerks and consist of: (1) GSA Form 873, Annual Attendance Record, or comparable document used for verifying payroll printouts and in managing employee leave and (2) retained copies of overtime reports and related records.

Cut off annually, hold <sup>2</sup> years, and destroy.

~~j. Leave application files. Standard Form 71, Application For Leave, or equivalent, and supporting papers relating to requests for and approval of taking leave.~~

- ~~(1) If the time card has been initialed by the employee, destroy at the end of the applicable pay period.~~
- ~~(2) If the time card has not been initialed by the employee, destroy after GAO audit or when 3 years old, whichever is sooner.~~

9C1. Program administration. Documents relating to the general routine administration of a program, but not specific files described elsewhere in this appendix or the succeeding chapters applicable to the program concerned. When any of the documents in this file results in the initiation of, or affects a specific program process, project, directive, or case (the files of which are described elsewhere in this appendix or in a subsequent chapter), the record copy should be filed in the official file for the process, project, directive, or case. Duplicate copies may be included in the program administration file as cross-references. Representative examples of files in this category include but are not limited to:

a. General correspondence. General routine correspondence not described elsewhere in this appendix or in succeeding chapters. If volume warrants, subdivide by specific program element or alphabetically by subject, name, or geographical location.

b. Accounting. Documents accumulated in monitoring and coordinating the status, receipt, expenditure, maintenance of the stability, control, reimbursement, reporting, and accounting for appropriated and revolving funds used to finance program operations. This paragraph is not applicable to files accumulated by offices responsible for budget and financial programs or to files of imprest fund cashiers. Included are cost reports and statements, tabulations, and related records.

c. Audit. Extracts of and comments on audit and evaluation reports pertaining to a program.

d. Automatic data processing. Documents accumulated in participating in the establishment, development, and application of ADP systems to program activities, but exclusive of counterpart documentation accumulated by the Office of Data Systems, MPB, regional Data Systems Divisions; and offices of data processing coordinators (individuals responsible for coordinating data processing activities on a service- or staff office- wide basis). Included are working group plans and study reports, reports of reviews, coordinating actions, feasibility and detailed design reports, approvals, and directly related records.

e. Clearance comments. Comments on directives, plans, and similar publications prepared by another office, but not directives case files or instruction files.

f. Congressional. Documents relating to congressional inquiries and replies thereto, but not documents accumulated by the Office of Congressional and Intergovernmental Relations.

g. Information. Comments on, or contributions to, news releases or other media publicizing a program, but not related documents accumulated by the public information program office of GSA.

h. Legislation files. Documents accumulated in drafting or commenting on proposed legislation affecting a program, but exclusive of documents accumulated by the Office of Congressional and Intergovernmental Relations, other offices in the Office of External Affairs, and the Office of General Counsel.

i. Management. Documents relating to management improvement, cost reduction, performance analysis, work measurement, and similar management matters, but not documents relating to the particular program activity or project that produced the saving or improvement. This subparagraph does not apply to files accumulated by offices having GSA-, service-, staff office-, or regional office-wide program responsibility for these functions.

j. Program and budget. Documents created in preparing and submitting planning, programing, budgeting, and program review and analysis data, but not records accumulated by offices having GSA-, service-, staff office-, or regional office-wide program responsibility for these functions.

k. Routine reports. Routine uncontrolled and controlled reports not described elsewhere.

l. Suggestion evaluations. Documents created in evaluating suggestions that do not affect specific program processes, projects, or cases. Excluded are related documents accumulated by incentive awards committees.

1. Cut off annually, ~~hold 2 years, and destroy~~ destroy when 2 years old.
(Disposition applies to all records described in 9C1, above, except for legislative files.)

2. Legislative files 9C1h: Cut off at the end of the second session of the Congress concerned, ~~hold 2 years, and destroy~~ destroy when 2 years old.

Note.-- To ensure flexibility, program administration files may be subdivided in accordance with lower case letters and titles used to identify subparagraphs above or in any other manner that satisfies the reference requirement of the file station concerned.

9C2. Instructions. Correspondence and other documents created in preparing, clearing, reviewing, issuing, and interpreting directives, instructions, and other publications relating to a program. These files are accumulated only by the office preparing the instructions and, to the extent accumulated, consist of:

a. Official directive case files, when maintained by the originating office instead of by the office of the directives clearance officer.

b. Retained copies of documents that are included in directive case files maintained by directives clearance officers.

c. Record copies of documents pertaining to, but which heretofore have not been included in, directive case files. For example, studies, research findings, and other documents which provided a basis for the directive; clarifications of, interpretations of, and authorized exceptions to the published directives; and similar records.

d. Authoritative instructions in reproduced form which were not issued under the GSA directive system.

Cut off annually after the instruction is superseded, canceled, or has expired.

Central Office and National Capital Region W:

Permanent. Hold 2 years and retire. Offer to NARS when 10 years old.

Other offices: Hold 2 years and retire.

Destroy after 3 additional years.

Note.-- Material described in b, above, when maintained separately, may be destroyed at any time.

9C3. Nonrecord files. These files consist of nonrecord material which is required longer than like material included in suspense files for destruction within 30 days or less. Nonrecord files include, but are not necessarily limited to, the following types:

a. Copies of documents maintained by action personnel which are duplicated in the record files of the same office.

b. Documents received for general information that require no action and that are not required to document a particular action, case, or project.

following)

902. Non-official directives case files and instructional letters. These files consist of working papers used to develop directives, maintained in the originating office and records relating to the development and issuance of temporary directives (instructional letters, numbered memos, etc.). This item covers only records of offices which are not covered elsewhere in this handbook. Records of the directives control office are covered by OAD P 1820.2, Chapter 11.

- a. Working papers used in the development of official directives, but maintained in the office of origin. These may include studies, research findings, or other documents which provide a basis for the directive.
- b. Instructional letters and other forms of temporary directives.

Cut off annually after directive or instruction is superseded, cancelled, or expired. Destroy 5 years after cutoff.

c. Cards, listings, indexes, registers, and similar documents used in controlling or facilitating program work. Excluded are file indexes which are normally retired or destroyed with the file concerned. Also excluded are registers required by directives; these are described specifically elsewhere in this handbook.

d. Notes, drafts, feeder reports, clippings, and other nonessential working papers leading to final results or findings in a project, study, or case, but not formal recommendations, clearances, or similar material essential to the record file.

e. Directives and other publications used for a specific project, study, survey, or case.

Destroy documents described in d and e, above, on completion of the related action or project, except that publications or directives needed for future cases or general reference shall be withdrawn and placed in the 9B31 Technical and Reference Materials files.

Cut off all other nonrecord files at the end of the year, ~~hold 1 year, and destroy.~~ destroy when 1 year old

Note.-- Nonrecord material, when required for inclusion in record files to facilitate reference, shall normally be retired or destroyed (without screening) with the record file concerned. However, nonrecord material included in a record file may be destroyed at any time, especially if the accumulation presents a reference, storage, or retirement problem.

9C4. Policy and precedent files. Duplicate copies of documents establishing policy or precedent for future and continuing action. These files are normally maintained at action levels and their maintenance is optional. Included are policy and procedure statements, copies of documents regarding organization and functions, examples or models of typical cases, and similar documents which are duplicated in official files.

Destroy when superseded, obsolete, or no longer needed for reference.

9C5. Unscheduled files. Documents reflecting the performance of a specific program function, process, or transaction, and for which documentation, maintenance, and disposition instructions are not provided elsewhere in this appendix or the appendix applicable to the program concerned.

Cut off annually, or on completion of the project or other applicable action, hold until records are scheduled.

Note.-- The action specified in chapter 8-37b must be taken to schedule these records before the next review date of the file plan.

9C6. Committee files. Documents created in establishing, operating, and dissolving committees whose purposes are to consider, advise, recommend, or take action. This file category is not applicable to files of ad hoc committees, committee files described specifically elsewhere in this handbook, and files of committees whose operations are an integral part of a specific process, project, or case. Included are proposals, approvals, and disapprovals concerning committee establishment; charters; copies of directives establishing, changing, continuing, or dissolving committees; documents reflecting the nomination, appointment, and relief of committee members; notices, agenda, minutes, and reports of committee meetings; and related records.

- a. Office of the chairman or secretariat, whichever is designated office of record: Permanent. Cut off annually and retire when no longer needed for current operations. Offer to NARS when 10 years old.
- b. Files of committee members: Cut off annually, ~~hold 2 years, and destroy.~~ destroy when 2 years old.

9C7. Contracting officer designation files. Documents designating individuals by name, organizational title, or position to serve or act as contracting officers. Included are GSA Form 3409, Personal Qualification Statement for appointment as Contracting Officer, GSA Form 3410, Request for appointment, limitations on scope of authority, designation revocations, and related records.

Place in inactive file following reassignment, termination of employment, or revocation of designation. Cut off annually, destroy when 2 years old.

This appendix provides special instructions for the maintenance and disposition of signatory records accumulated by offices of signatory or supervisory officials. These signatory records are those copies of letters or similar types of documents that require signature or concurrence at higher levels than the action office. Each level above the action office that concurs or signs receives a copy of the letter or document after signature. These copies are the signatory records providing the signatory official a complete record of all documents signed. See fig. 9D-1 for a graphic explanation of signing levels. For the purpose of this appendix, offices of signatory or supervisory officials include offices of Regional Administrators and Heads of Regional Services and Staff Offices.

Signatory or supervisory officials should forward official record copies of papers originated or received by them and which document program functions under their supervision or direction to the file station servicing the action office concerned. This procedure will ensure complete documentation and simplify disposition.

The disposition of personal files maintained by high-level officials will be determined by the individual who designated the file as personal. These records shall be examined by the appropriate records officer prior to the departure of the official from the agency.

Maintenance and disposition of record copies of documents of the type described in 9C1, when maintained by signatory or supervisory offices, shall be disposed of in accordance with instructions in this appendix. Maintenance and disposition of record copies of all other program documentation, which must be maintained at the signatory or supervisory level, shall be disposed of in accordance with the applicable instructions in appendix 9-C or the appendix of the subsequent chapter that describes the particular record category concerned.

The files described below may be classified and arranged in any manner that suits the reference requirement of the office concerned. For example, these files may be arranged by any one or a combination of the methods set forth below:

- a. In chronological order with the most recent communication on top;
- b. By correspondence symbols or titles of responsible action offices;

OAD P 1820.2 CHGE

c. In alphabetical order by subject, name, or geographical location; and

d. By the titles of appropriate paragraphs and subparagraphs in appendix 9-C and the appendixes applicable to the programs under the staff supervision or direction of the officials concerned, preceded by the alphanumeric file symbol 9D1.
