Food for Peace (FFP)

The Food for Peace program benefits approximately 3 billion people in 150 countries. Food for Peace is the work of farmers, businessmen, grain elevator operators, truckers, bargemen, freight forwarders, port operations, private voluntary organizations, and government officials that stretching from this country's fertile fields to hungry families half a world away. The Food for Peace Information System (FFPIS) is a database used to manage the FFP program and contains cost, financial and programmatic data. The FFPIS tracks a commodity from when it is purchased from the supplier until it has reached its final destination. Various reports generated by the FFPIS are used for tracking, decision-making, estimating future aid and funding requirements.

1 Food for Peace Information System Master File

The Food for Peace Information System (FFPIS) was developed in 1992. The master files include commodity information, suppliers, sponsors, costs, proposals, agreements, and port information, both foreign and domestic.
