Description:

The Office of Research and Development (ORD) Management Information System (OMIS) was created to provide a comprehensive automated system to assist ORD managers and staff with financial management, project tracking, human resources management, and laboratory implementation plan decisions. It allows for uniform reporting across all organizational units, reduces the number of ORD-wide calls for similar types of data, and provides a single repository of information that serves as the basis for decision making.

The system currently has four interrelated modules: Integrated Resources Management System (IRMS); Human Resources Management System (HRS); Procurement and Acquisition of Capital Equipment (PACE); and Facilities Management System (FMP).

The modules link as follows: IRMS links to the Integrated Financial Management System (IFMS); HRS links to the PeoplePlus system. All of the above links included in this schedule are or will be scheduled separately. End user access is through the EPA Internet.

Reasons for Disposition:

This system is used to improve the process of planning, developing, and tracking performance in response to the Government Performance and Results Act (GPRA) requirements. IRMS ensures that ORD's annual budget is linked to ORD programmatic plans and to reconcile the budget with IFMS. HRS is designed to assist senior managers to manage their resources. PACE is designed to manage the scientific equipment program from needs review to purchase approval. FMP is designed to assist senior management in the planning, coordination, and oversight of all buildings and facilities at ORD locations. Retention meets administrative and program needs.
