On February 15, 1962, MM 639-S, who has been engaged in Cuban revolutionary activities for the past four years, advised that GERALD PATRICK HEMMING, an American adventurer, had a group of Americans in Miami who were interested in trying to form some military action against Cuba.

In June, 1961, HEMMING had a training camp in the Florida Everglades located some 40 miles West of Miami and later another camp at Key Largo, Florida.

HEMMING operated these camps for a few days at a time and most of the participants were Americans.

HEMMING is now in California and his group has been disbanded.

MM 639-S personally knew all these people and had visited and participated in these training camps.

Informant does not recognize the subject by name or physical description. If a photograph is available of subject, informant would be able to state definitely if subject participated in these training camps.
