Chief, [redacted]

Case 16603

15-21877

1. Confirming and supplementing our several long-distance telephone conversations, I report herewith concerning my interview with [redacted] and two members of the [redacted] group in [redacted] on 18 and 19 September 1958. This portion of the report is concerned with the mechanics of the operation and the personalities involved. It would be, I presume, of little interest to SI. A supplemental section contains a description of the material offered by the Cuban refugees, which portion, I assure, you will turn over to SI/WH Division.

2. On arrival in Miami, I called at the office of the FBI with a view to informing that Agency of my presence and of the general nature of the activities I proposed to engage in, so that the agents of the Bureau would not be unduly surprised if they learned of my activities from other agents who were presumably keeping my proposed contacts under surveillance. The SAC was absent from the office. I accordingly talked with one of the Duty Officers, a Special Agent named [redacted] whom I had met before and who has frequently cooperated with [redacted] [redacted] was most pleasant and cooperative. I informed him that the matter on which I was engaged had been coordinated with FBI headquarters through [redacted] and that the Bureau interposed no objections. I then told him, in general terms, about the activities of [redacted] in Washington. The agent said that he had known [redacted] for about 10 years and that he considered [redacted] to be an unreliable person and a complete opportunist. He said that [redacted] had been in Naval Intelligence during World War II and that since the end of his tour of active duty he had held a number of jobs in some of which he had been able to make a success. These jobs included the agency for a wine manufacturer, the position of [redacted] the agency for a maker of concrete blocks and several other enterprises. In one of his jobs [redacted] had been suspected of pilferage and had been discharged on that account, although no prosecution was instituted. [redacted] is now, according to [redacted] operating a private detective agency and is also acting as public relations adviser. He is believed to be the owner of a corporation known as [redacted] the exact operations of which are unknown.

3. [redacted] said that [redacted] claimed to have excellent sources of information on Cuba and that he particularly had referred to a [redacted] a political refugee from Cuba, who had engaged quite intensively in anti-Communist activities. [redacted] said that the "legal attache" (I assume that means an FBI representative) at the US Embassy in Havana had at one time written to the SAC in Miami about [redacted] and had said that the latter had once been in a position to obtain valuable information concerning the activities of the Communists in Cuba, but that, in his belief, [redacted] was given to flights of fancy.

22 September 1954

4. [redacted] pointed out that, although the criminal cases against [redacted] had been ended with pleas of nolo contendere and fines, cases were still pending against four other Cuban exiles who are allegedly engaged in the gun-running plot. He said that inasmuch as the cases were primarily the interest of the Customs Department, the FBI was not immediately interested. He voiced the opinion that Customs representatives were maintaining surveillance on the defendants in the various suits.

5. Returning from the FBI office, I telephoned [redacted] as arranged, at 3:00 p.m. and identified myself as directed in WA-9779. [redacted] said that it would be impossible to arrange a meeting with the Cubans that afternoon, since the leader of the group would not be available. He said that a meeting could be arranged for the following morning, Sunday, 19 September, at 11:00 a.m., and I accordingly arranged to meet the group in a room at the [redacted] which I had reserved for that purpose. I suggested a preliminary meeting with [redacted] so as to obtain information about the persons I was to see, but he said that that would not be feasible on Saturday and that he would drop in on Sunday morning a few minutes ahead of the rest of the group.

6. [redacted] arrived at the designated room on Sunday morning at 10:45 a.m. He did not request the exhibition of credentials and I did not exhibit them. He said that the meeting with the Cubans would have to be postponed until 4:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon, inasmuch as the leader of the group was at that time engaged in preparing a speech. He said he would bring two members of the group to the [redacted] at 4:00 p.m., and I agreed to meet them at that time.

7. [redacted] said that the two men he wanted me to talk to were [redacted] and a [redacted] whose full name [redacted] did not know. He said that [redacted] is a leading Cuban consulting engineer and is [redacted] of the [redacted]. For a short time he was [redacted]. He is a member of [redacted] Authentic Party, but belongs to the conservative wing which is highly critical of some of [redacted] actions. [redacted] was exiled from Cuba when his name was found on an envelope in the possession of [redacted]. He is under indictment in the US District Court but has pleaded not guilty to charges of gun-running growing out of the same incident concerning which [redacted] pleaded "nolo contendere."

8. [redacted] according to [redacted], is and has been for many years the president of the Anti-Communist League of Cuba. During a part of the terms of [redacted] [redacted] held the rank of Captain in the Cuban Army and was in charge of a counter-espionage section dealing with Cuban Communists. [redacted] in his official capacity, was largely instrumental in having the Soviet Embassy in Havana closed. He was removed by Batista from his Army post in 1952 and, after spending some months in sanctuary in the Uruguayan Embassy in Havana, he came to Miami in June of 1954.

9. [redacted] also wished me to meet [redacted] and [redacted] was currently in New York. [redacted] He was described by [redacted] as one of the most brilliant persons he had ever met and he said that I could obtain a great deal of information from him concerning the present political and economic situation in Cuba. He was not immediately available and had no connection with the documents allegedly possessed by [redacted] a former newspaper columnist and member of Batista's Consultative Council, was also described by [redacted] as a prolific source of information on Cuban political matters. He too was not immediately available and had no connection with the [redacted] documents. In the circumstances, I told [redacted] that I would defer interviews with [redacted] and [redacted] until some future time.

10. At 4:00 p.m. on Sunday, 19 September, [redacted] returned to the room in the Columbus Hotel, bringing with him [redacted] introduced to us as [redacted] a pseudonym I had supplied. He told them that I was a representative of the US Government and that we were interested in the documents in [redacted] possession. He assured them that the information which they might give us would be treated as highly classified material, and he then left the meeting. It developed that [redacted] could not speak any English (incidentally, [redacted] does not speak Spanish), so that it was necessary to converse with him through [redacted] who acted as interpreter. [redacted] is fluent in English and Spanish.

11. The substance of the information supplied by [redacted] concerning the documents in his possession is contained in the second part of this report. [redacted] appeared to attach a very high historical value to the contents of his documents and seemed anxious to make them available to US authorities. He disclaimed any desire for a fee and merely said that he wished to retain the originals, since he considered that they constituted an authentic account of the growth of the Communist movement in Cuba, but that we would be entirely welcome to photostat or otherwise copy the contents of his files.

12. At the conclusion of the interview, I thanked the [redacted] for their courtesy and cooperation and told [redacted] that I would get in touch with him later in the week either directly or through [redacted]

13. I enclose herewith a letter to [redacted] confirming our interest in the [redacted] documents and asking him to notify us when it is expected that they will begin arriving, so that we may attempt to facilitate their entry. You will note that I have signed the letter with the name [redacted] which is how I was introduced to [redacted]. I think the letter should be mailed in Washington rather than in [redacted] so as to allay any suspicions that [redacted] may harbor that I am not actually a government representative. You will note that I have suggested that [redacted] write to us in [redacted] in care of [redacted] at [redacted]. He will, no doubt, assume that this is a letter-drop.

14. In view of the fact that I refer by implication to the Customs Department, I suggest that you hold the letter to Revia until you or Cicciolani have discussed the matter with [redacted] who is the superior of [redacted] the Supervising Customs Agent in Miami. I suggest that the letter be sent air mail, unregistered. I have left the date blank and I request that you insert it before mailing. If you wish to change the letter in any way, please do so. Revia does not, of course, know my handwriting, so that the letter can be signed by anyone.

[redacted] account shows that in early June 1953 there was a balance of US$11,641.72 on 19 June 1953, but the highest balance reached was US$11,641.72 on 19 June 1953. By 30 July 1953 the account had fallen to US$1,434.38. There has been no activity since that date.

Account shows the following:

The deposit of US$4,500 on 3 July was in the form of a check drawn by [redacted] of Miami Beach, Fla.

The deposit of US$15,000 on 9 July was in the form of a check on the Bank of America, New York, the drawer's signature illegible.

The withdrawal of 26 August was in cash. [redacted] asked for one thousand dollars and was given mostly one hundred dollar bills and a few five hundred dollars. During 1952, the most unusual activity of [redacted] account was the deposit of US$100 on 25 September, a US$150,000 deposit on 25 September, and a withdrawal of US$140,000. Since the withdrawal was by check, which was cashed by the depositor after cancellation, the identity of the payee is not could take place with regard to this bank if it would serve any good purpose.

2. During the week of 28 August - 4 September 1953, Savies presented one hundred thousand pesos in new bills at the bank, requesting dollars therefor.
He was told the currency would have to be sent to the Banco Nacional de Cuba for liquidation and that the bank in all probability would want to know the identity of the person exchanging the pesos. Savies reluctantly agreed to do so and said he had previously sold a large sum of pesos to another bank with difficulty. [redacted] said his reason for requesting the exchange was that he feared a devaluation of the Cuban peso because of the rapid depletion of the gold reserves in the US.

WITHIN THE PAST WEEK [REDACTED] PRESENTED ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND

THAT THE CURRENCY WOULD HAVE TO BE SENT TO CUBA FOR EXAMINATION

TO KNOW THE IDENTITY OF THE PERSON EXCHANGING THE PESOS. [REDACTED] SAID HE WOULD RATHER NOT HAVE HIS NAME DISCLOSED BUT CONSENTED TO
