Appraisal of Content: 3.

- In early January 1963 Manolo Ray, former leader of the Cuban exile group, Movimiento Revolucionario del Pueblo (MRP, People's Revolutionary Movement) and now head of the Junta Revolucionaria (JURE, Revolutionary Junta), stated that the JURE is now concentrating its efforts on organizing internal resistance in Cuba.
- According to Ray, the JURE controls the following groups with forces inside Cuba: the MRP, the 30th of November Revolutionary Movement, Federacion Estudiantil Universitaria (FEU, University Students' Federation), Accion Cristiana (AC, Christian Action) and the Movimiento de Recuperacion Revolucionaria Cubana (MRRC, Cuban Revolutionary Recovery Movement).<sup>1</sup> Present plans are limited, first of all, to rebuilding these resistance forces which have now nearly recovered from the losses sustained during the April 1961 Bahia de Cochinos invasion, and secondly, to establishing contact with non-Communists in Cuba and persuading them to reject the Castro regime and to aid the resistance movement. Ray added that no date will be set for starting the operations until sufficient resources are available to permit sustained action. A tentative estimate is that another three months will be required to collect the necessary resources.

1. Headquarters Comment. It is doubtful that Ray "controls" all these organizations, although some members from them have probably joined the JURE.
