According to FOREMAN, subject's association with [Soviet nationals] began in January 1958, when [IVAN V. (S) FEDORCHENKO (Bufile 105-51672; NY file 105-20553) and BORIS S. (S) IVANOV (Bufile 105-36596; NY file 105-12456)] started English language courses at the Berlitz School. FOREMAN related the attendance of [these Soviets] at the Berlitz School (S) continued through June 1958. FOREMAN stated he had previously attended several musicales at the LEVITSKY apartment which were held weekly on Tuesdays during this period in LEVITSKY's apartment. FOREMAN related the people attending the musicales were amateur musicians who met and played for their own pleasure. FOREMAN advised that on no other occasion, to his knowledge, had [Soviet nationals] attended these musicales. FOREMAN stated there (S) were about 20 other people present aside from the subject, GARRIGUE and the mentioned [Soviets,] but that he was not (S) acquainted with any of the other persons in attendance. had dated one AMERICO LNU, HARBER's roommate. FOREMAN stated subject informed him that AMERICO had told her [KOVALEV] had been to the apartment shared by HARBER and himself on several occasions. FOREMAN advised he could not presently recall the other people in attendance at the party.

FOREMAN stated that on a Saturday night in the latter part of July or August, 1958, the subject held a party in her apartment. FOREMAN advised that on 9/11/59, the subject informed him she had made an appointment with [FEDORCHENKO at the UN Secretariat] and requested FOREMAN accompany her. FOREMAN stated there is an amicable relationship between subject, [FEDORCHENKO and] himself. (s)

FOREMAN stated the association of subject, GARRIGUE, DEDERI and himself with [the Soviets] mentioned above, developed from the student-teacher relationship at the Berlitz School, a curiosity on the part of the subject, GARRIGUE, DEDERI and himself to find out more about [the Soviets] and their way of life and a desire to exchange [Russian] and English language lessons. FOREMAN advised he had never heard subject, GARRIGUE or DEDERI utter remarks that could be construed as sympathetic to the Communist form of government. FOREMAN related he was a particularly close associate of subject and that she had confided to him that she had been troubled on being turned down for a position with the State Department, US Government, during 1956. FOREMAN stated the subject felt her rejection for the position was the result of some suspected subversive associations of an uncle of the subject. FOREMAN stated subject is a sincere, loyal American and that subject was not bitter over not being accepted by the State Department. FOREMAN advised that on the contrary, subject nurtured a heartfelt desire to "clear her name from the cloud which she believes hangs over it." (s)
