COMMENTS : SUMMARY

Miami report dated 12/21/49 revealed that on 11/16/49, the liquor license for the Tahiti Bar, 244 23rd Street, Miami Beach, was transferred to Marilyn Yaras, wife of David Yaras. The Tahiti Bar was known as a hangout for hoodlums. It was believed by the Miami Beach PD that Marilyn Yaras was obviously a "front" for Yaras in the operation of the Tahiti Bar since he could not obtain a license in view of his criminal record. The PD also believed that Yaras was possibly a "front" for Joe Massey, notorious hoodlum who migrated to Miami Beach from Detroit, Michigan, and had extensive property interests in the Miami Beach area.

Joseph Vinson, associated with the National Board of Fire Underwriters at Miami, advised that Max Caldwell, Miami Beach, was making plans to kidnap Sam Friedland, wealthy owner of the Food Fair Stores and Miami Beach hotels. Davie Yaras' name had been mentioned as the man to be used in this kidnapping.

Yaras, Chicago PD# D-14360, was a well-known Chicago hoodlum who had resided in Miami Beach for the past several years. He received much publicity a few years ago due to his having been identified as one of the killers in a Chicago slaying. He also reportedly had an interest in gambling in Havana, Cuba.

Ernest Glaeser, Special Agent, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, St. Louis, Missouri, furnished a list of extra toll charges on Evergreen 2-7506 which belonged to John Joseph Vitale, suspect in the Bobbie Greenlease kidnapping (7-6920). On 1/5/56 a call was made from this number to Miami Beach-Mohawk 1-1394 to Davie Yaroz or Jefferson 8-3255.

The Miami Office believed this person was possibly identical with David Yaras, Chicago PD# D14360, a well-known Chicago torpedo, who with two others tried to kill one James Ragen at Chicago when the Capone group was taking over the Continental News Wire Service.

Harold Konigsberg (92-5177) advised that in 1963, he had been requested by Seymour Flax (not identified) to approach Teddy Gleason, President of the International Longshoremen's Association, and for Gleason, in turn, to contact Jimmy Hoffa, President of the Teamster's Union, to secure a $900,000 loan for Frankie's Market, Lodi, New Jersey. Konigsberg did not know the ultimate outcome of this deal, but did know that subsequently Joseph Zicarelli (not identified) went to Chicago where supposedly he spoke with Dave Yaras who was then to see Hoffa or else use his influence in obtaining the loan. The loan was to come out of the Teamster's Pension Fund.

The following references in the file captioned "Jack Leon Ruby" pertain to David Yaras in Chicago and Miami from 9/26/63-12/5/63. On 11/27/63 it was reported that there was a tie-in between Ruby in Dallas and Yaras in Miami in connection with shylocking and girls. Yaras was interviewed in Chicago on 12/5/63 and denied having any relationship whatever with Ruby, business or otherwise, subsequent to Ruby's departure from Chicago approximately fourteen years ago. He did admit that he had known Ruby as "Sparky", a young hustler and fight fan in Chicago. Also, his brother Sam Yaras had been acquainted with Ruby in Dallas, but Sam had died seven years ago. Yaras had not been in Dallas since 1945 when he and his brother had a "split". The President's Commission requested information regarding certain individuals' telephone calls during the period 9/26/63-11/22/63. One of these individuals, Robert Baker, 5900 North Sheridan, Chicago, RA 8-4031, placed a call to JE 8-3255, Miami, listed to Yaras, 4410 Adams Ave., Miami Beach, during this period.

The 7/13/66 issue of the "Chicago Sun Times" carried an article entitled "Firm's Vast Gaming Output Related Here". The article revealed that the Illinois Crime Investigation Commission (ICIC) had uncovered evidence that organized crime syndicate gangsters had been enriched by distributing gambling devices put out by the Empire Press, Inc. (166-1163), 644 N. Orleans, Chicago. During the ICIC public hearings, Empire employees were asked if they had seen David Marras at the plant. The witnesses all stated that they wouldn't be able to recognize Yaras.

On 10/16/67 Edwin L. Abercrombie, Vice President of the Laundry, Drycleaning and Dye House Workers International Union, Local 218, Atlanta, Georgia (159-2651), related several incidents which had happened recently. He believed the purpose of these incidents was to scare him into allowing hoodlums into his union in Miami and felt it was an attempt by "the Mafia" or a big-shot hoodlum, David Yaras in Miami, to get a man into his union as a business agent in that area. Bennie Husick, "leg man" for Yaras, had called Abercrombie and asked for a job with his union as a business agent. When Abercrombie told Husick he could not have the job because of his police record, Husick told Abercrombie he hoped that he (Abercrombie) was never in Miami when Yaras was in town. After this conversation Abercrombie received several messages to call David and he assumed they might have been from Yaras. He did not ever try to contact Yaras.

LA 4711-C-TE advised that during a trip between 10/5/70 and 10/19/70 to Tampa, Florida, he made contact with Davie Yarras in Miami. They discussed the fact that Lefty Rosenthal in Las Vegas called a gambling operation in Los Angeles weekly to place large bets. Yarras was aware of Rosenthal's activities and advised that Rosenthal was the center of a gambling operation in Las Vegas which was backed by "big money" operations in various families in the US. Yarras stated that while he (apparently Rosenthal) did not bank the operation in its entirety, he was satisfied by taking a "chopper" which the source described as layoff action.
