INTELLIGENCE DEVELOPMENTS

CUBA

1. Cuban reaction to the assassination of President KENNEDY, as revealed in COMINT, reflected a state of alarm followed by a cautious correctness. Shortly after news of the assassination reached Cuba unidentified military units in Oriente Province, possibly near Guantanamo, were placed on an alert; units in the Eastern Naval District were ordered to be ready to repel aggression; and Foreign Minister ROA instructed Cuban diplomatic missions not to make any statements. And in an unprecedented move, Havana ordered the link to the [REDACTED] to stay open all night. Another message to [REDACTED] requested complete data on Lyndon JOHNSON, "including his political connections, etc.:" The following day, Havana originated a message urging a calm objective analysis of the facts and their possible consequences, stating that both the EISENHOWER and KENNEDY administrations had been guilty of economic aggression tending to cause economic ruin and hunger among the people. Nonetheless, the official Cuban statement issued on the 23rd, expressed "deep sorrow" at the news of the "tragic death" of the President. A [REDACTED] message of the same date reported Havana to be calm but cautious, with only a few

NSASCC Comment: DIA issued an IDIG message (16-63) on 22 November, urging all Indication Centers to initiate an immediate alert for possible hostile reactions to the shooting of the President. Any indication of a change in enemy posture was to be immediately passed via INDIC channels to DIA and CREFIC messages were to be used as appropriate.

[redacted] alerted a counter-revolutionary plot. The [redacted] Chief, on 23 November 1963, issued a message to the [redacted] Chiefs at [redacted] at 0001 hours 24 November 1963. The [redacted] Chiefs were instructed to "...keep a strict watch over movements in the vicinity of this Brigade and over the movements of forces of the Brigade. The surveillance will be carried out by under-cover methods. You will assume a perfect guard setup which will enable you to respond instantly in an emergency."
