Headquarters Comments

- In a report dated 8 June 1955, a representative of this Agency obtained the following information [from an official Cuban Service:] <sup>24</sup>

The Match Industry Workers' Union, prior to 1951, was in the hands of the Communists with Ramiro RODRIGUEZ Gomez as Secretary General; since 1953, it has been controlled by the Progressive Labor Bloc. Source said that RODRIGUEZ, an active Party member and director of the Comite de Lucho, was a former candidate for councilman for the Partido Socialista Popular (PSP). He has not been admitted into the union.

2. A usually reliable source, in a report dated 2 March 1961, reported on the travel of Cubans through Rio de Janeiro during November and December 1961. Included on the list was Ramiro RODRIGUEZ Gomez who arrived from Habana on 27 November 1961. He carried Diplomatic Passport Number 570 with Visa number D-407 issued in Habana on 27 December 1961. His date and place of birth were given as 11 March 1928, in Habana.
3. A usually reliable source, in a report dated 23 April 1962, stated that Ramiro RODRIGUEZ Gomez was the First Secretary of the Cuban Embassy in Rio de Janeiro.
4. An unknown source, in August 1962, reported that Ramiro RODRIGUEZ, who arrived in Brazil on 28 December 1961, as First Secretary, was formerly the First Secretary of the Cuban Embassy in Venezuela and was identified as a G-2 agent there. He was born on 11 March 1928. He was Secretary General of the Match Industry Workers' Union before 1961, at a time when it was in the hands of the Communists.
5. In a report dated 20 December 1962, a fairly reliable source gave the following information on Ramiro RODRIGUEZ, Charge d'Affaires of the Cuban Embassy in Rio de Janeiro. He is about five feet eight inches tall, 150 pounds, has a small mustache, black hair, a swarthy complexion, dresses well, is very poised socially, has a quick mind and is rather introverted. He was born about 1927.
6. An [official liaison service]<sup>24</sup> in a report dated 28 December 1962, said that Ramiro RODRIGUEZ Gomez is suspected Cuban intelligence. Since December 1961, he has been the First Secretary at the Cuban Embassy in Rio de Janeiro. He was formerly the First Secretary at the Cuban Embassy in Caracas and was said to be head of G-2 there and responsible for organizing the November 1961 attacks on Cuban exiles in Caracas.
7. In a report dated June 1963 an unknown source said that his assistant was told by Ramiro RODRIGUEZ that there would be almost a complete changeover of personnel shortly; he added that only the Commercial Attache, Camilo DOMENECH Gadea, would not be returning soon to Cuba.
8. It was reported in August 1963, that Ramiro RODRIGUEZ, former Charge d'Affaires of the Cuban Embassy in Rio de Janeiro, was still in Rio de Janeiro; apparently he had not completely briefed the new ambassador.

9. A fairly reliable source, in a report dated 2 January 1954, stated that Ramiro RODRIGUEZ Gomez, First Secretary of the Cuban Embassy in Rio de Janeiro, departed Rio de Janeiro on 18 August 1953, for Cuba and returned to Rio de Janeiro on 23 November 1953. Source observed that RODRIGUEZ has been in a bad humor since his return and is rude to his former friends, including Nivea BRASIL, wife of the Communist, Colonel Jocelyn BRASIL. RODRIGUEZ and Mrs. BRASIL were on very intimate terms (according to source, adulterous), but RODRIGUEZ spurns her attempts at being chummy again. Source feels that RODRIGUEZ is up to something special and notes that he is in close contact with General Luiz Gonzaga LEITE, the organizer of the Cuba Solidarity Congress. According to RODRIGUEZ' file card in the Protocol Division of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, RODRIGUEZ was born on 11 March 1928, in Habara. His wife is Isel DOMINGUEZ de Armas and they have one daughter, Eva RODRIGUEZ Dominquez, who was born about 1950.
