"possible violation of the entry provisions of Section 1185 (b), it is extremely doubtful whether a jury could be persuaded to convict Lee of a felony calling for upwards of five years imprisonment for simply having overstayed his validated leave in Cuba by some three weeks. Therefore, it is our opinion that the facts are such as to give no reasonable assurance of a successful prosecution under the entry provisions of 8 U.S.C. 1185 (b).

"With regard to a possible violation of the Foreign Agents Registration Act (22 U.S.C. 611 et seq.), the only evidence to establish that the subject was requested by an official of a foreign government to perform a certain activity within the United States is hearsay in nature. There is no witness available who can testify that he was present when such a request was made of the subject. There is likewise no available witness who can testify that he was present when the subject accepted money from an official or agent of a foreign government. In the absence of either of these elements, prosecution under the Foreign Agents Registration Act would fail and therefore it is our opinion that the evidence is insufficient to establish a violation of the Act."
