NO 92-246

Sergeant H. J. LADNER, Harrison County Deputy Sheriff, Gulfport, Mississippi, advised SA WILLIAM F. DUKES confidentially on March 22, 1962 that on or about March 6, 1962, the same date that SA's DUKES and RICHARDSON interviewed Sheriff CURTIS O. DEDEAUX and ASA GARRIGA, JR., about GARRIGA's prostitution activities, Sheriff DEDEAUX called LADNER in and accused him, LADNER, of having furnished the information which instituted the FBI's investigation of GARRIGA and his associates. LADNER advised DEDEAUX intimated strongly that if he could prove this, he would fire LADNER on the spot.

LADNER stated he got the definite impression that DEDEAUX was concerned about the investigation, for fear that it might develop information which could prove embarrassing to him, both individually and as the sheriff. LADNER stated he doubted seriously whether he, LADNER, could hold his job much longer, inasmuch as DEDEAUX and Deputy Sheriffs HUGH R. BROACH, JR., and GEORGE ROSETTI were talking against him. He advised he considered Detective DOUG THOMPSON (since resigned) with the Sheriff's Office to be the only reliable, trustworthy officer presently associated with the department, other than himself.

Mr. GASTON H. HEWES, Harrison County Prosecuting Attorney, Gulfport, Mississippi, advised SA WILLIAM F. DUKES confidentially on May 25, 1962, that he has had considerable difficulty in recent dealings with Sheriff CURTIS DEDEAUX, in the course of which DEDEAUX has interrogated an emotionally upset witness in a murder case, contrary to specific instructions by HEWES and District Attorney BOYCE HOLLEMAN.

NO 1017-C, Gulfport, Mississippi, advised SA WILLIAM F. DUKES on June 21, 1962, that he was recently with ASA GARRIGA, JR., when GARRIGA slipped on a service station grease rack, and injured his shoulder in the ensuing fall. He and GARRIGA both have liability insurance and they thereafter contacted Harrison County Deputy Sheriff ROBERT PARKER, and proposed that they fake an automobile accident and split the "take" from the insurance company. They planned to fake a head-on collision between Informant and GARRIGA on Pat Harrison Avenue in Biloxi, Mississippi, with GARRIGA subsequently using the bruise on his shoulder to justify a personal injury claim, the accident to be investigated by PARKER. Informant advised that both PARKER and GARRIGA appeared as planned, but that he, Informant, arrived later than planned, so the deal did not take place.
