Reurairtel 9-20-61, captioned as above.

The RF activation of Automatic Electric Company produced telephone instruments has not been favorable in the past. However, if you will furnish the Bureau with a model instrument identical to that used in subject's residence, experiments will be conducted to determine if the particular model instrument can be energized.

It is suggested that you consider using the [single pair (u)] microphone-telephone technique for this coverage of the subject. Should you desire to pursue this technique, you should furnish the Bureau, attention FBI Laboratory, an instrument identical with subject's so that the appropriate modifications can be effected and the modified instrument returned to you for substitution of subject's telephone equipment. You should allow at least two weeks for transit and modification of the telephone instrument. Page 181 of the Handbook of Technical Equipment sets forth the details the Laboratory must know in order to prepare the substitute instrument.

ReTPairtel 6/2/61.

Referenced airtel reports the results of a survey conducted to determine the possibility of installation of misur coverage in the home of the subject.

The Tampa Office at this time requests authority to conduct another survey to determine whether the RFMT technique can be used to effect coverage of the subject's home.

In connection with this survey, the Electronics Section of the FBI Laboratory is requested to furnish the Tampa Division with any information available to them which would indicate types of telephones manufactured by the Automatic Electric Company, Northlake, Illinois, which are compatible with the use of the RFMT. It is noted that the Tampa Division at Tampa has telephone service furnished by General Telephone Company of Florida. This company uses telephones manufactured by Automatic Electric. (CU)

Should the above-requested information not be available to the FBI Laboratory, it is requested that consideration be given to furnishing the Tampa Office with RFMT equipment in order that tests might be conducted to secure this information. (CU)
