On May 23, 1964, United Press International, date-line Caracas, Venezuela, stated that MANUEL ARTIME BUESA, head of the Movimiento Recuperacion Revolucionaria (MRR), held a press conference in Caracas, Venezuela. ARTIME stated that he had nothing new to say and no comment about the possibility of new operations against Cuba, but he did claim it would take from one to three years to overthrow FIDEL CASTRO, present Prime Minister of Cuba.

ARTIME said that the only practical measures would be a series of commando raids against Cuba, and he still felt it would take from one to three years to overthrow CASTRO.

ARTIME said his group at that time had 8 training camps, however, he refused to reveal their whereabouts or the number of men in training. He said some of the camps were functioning without the knowledge of the local governments and in three different countries the exiles were forced to close their camps when they were discovered.

The MIAMI NEWS, a daily newspaper published in Miami, Florida, on July 5, 1964 contained an article stating that ARTIME, the previous day, ordered all his men to report to South American training camps immediately. In a press release issued by the MRR in Miami the organization claimed that the majority of the MRR followers already have left for an undisclosed destination, and the order for their departure came from ARTIME's headquarters.

It was also announced that the MRR office at 2212 N.E. 2nd Court, Miami, had been closed and this closure was in line with ARTIME's announced plan for the liberation of Cuba.

A spokesman for the MRR said the organization would maintain its headquarters in Costa Rica, and continue its training camps in Nicaragua. The MRR will continue to operate in Central America and has moved out of the United States so it can work unhampered by the United States government.

On July 9, 1964, MM T-1, an American citizen who maintains close contact with the MRR, advised that that organization closed their Miami headquarters, has moved to Central America, but has established a secret underground office somewhere in Miami, Florida. MM T-1 was unable to advise as to the present location of the secret underground office. (C)

On July 2, 1964, MM T-2, another government agency which conducts intelligence investigations, advised that although ARTIME continues as secretary general of the MRR. (u)

MANUEL RAY and other leading figures in the Cuban exile community, claim that the MRR conducted this raid to offset press publicity given to RAY during May, 1964. RAY and others claim that although ARTIME is given favorable treatment and money subsidy by the United States government, he only conducted one military mission against Cuba and that was motivated by political considerations. Other organizations claim that if they had a fraction of the money given to the MRR, they could have accomplished 100 times as much as ARTIME.

On August 4, 1964, MM T-1 advised that about 43 [X] MRR members went to Central America to join ARTIME during the month of July, 1964. MM T-1 advised the organization [X] claims it is going to move all its records and equipment out of Miami by chartered airplane to ARTIME's headquarters in Central America. (X)(c)

MM T-1 continued that about a week or two previously, the MRR chartered a commercial airliner to fly into Miami and pick up members to take them to Central America.
