2) Also, will have Miami Office sources who have in the past been close to FRANK FIORINI attempt to discreetly determine from him details regarding abortive IACB expedition and its objectives.

- ADMINISTRATIVE - Interviews of thirteen IACB members were conducted at Miami International Airport, in space provided by U.S. Customs, Miami. One Miami Office Agent and one U.S. Customs Agent, Miami, participated in each interview. Each interview, however, was under the exclusive control of the Miami Office Agent, with the Customs Agent acting in an observer capacity. It is noted that the Miami Office and U.S. Customs, Miami, have cooperated closely over the years. In this instance, in order to avoid attracting news media at the airport, arrangements were made with U.S. Customs to provide space for confidential interviews of subjects. At that time, EUGENE KELLY, Acting Customs Agent in Charge, Miami, requested permission to have Customs Agents act as observers during the interviews. In order to save time and to determine if there had been any violations within the investigative jurisdiction of U.S. Customs, this request was granted.

This report is classified "~~CONFIDENTIAL~~," because it contains information from ~~MM 1115-S~~ the unauthorized ~~[C]~~ disclosure of which could reasonably result in his identification and thereby compromise his future effectiveness. It is also so classified to conceal the identity of the Mexican Immigration Service, as having furnished information herein. ~~X~~ is of the opinion that such a program is very receptive to the Cuban colony in Miami, and would therefore afford him entrance to various Cuban groups. In these efforts he is assisted by a woman, who is a former political prisoner in Cuba. It is questionable whether or not FIORINI is sincerely interested in the release of Cuban political prisoners.
