REMARKS: John,

Here is the Archives' proposed press release. They have sent it here for coordination and asked that we not make any release of our own before 17 Aug. Look OK to you? If we do issue a press release, we will share it with them beforehand.

Regards,

Dave

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MEDIA ADVISORY

National Archives Announces Opening of Materials from the President John F. Kennedy Assassination Records Collection

On Monday, August 23, 1993, at 8:45 a.m., the National Archives will make available to the public additional materials from the Kennedy Assassination Records Collection at the National Archives Building, Pennsylvania Avenue, between 7th and 9th Streets NW, Washington, D.C. Research cards are required for viewing the materials; application forms will be available beginning at 8:30 a.m. at Pennsylvania Avenue Lobby.

This opening results from the President John F. Kennedy Assassination Records Collection Act of 1992 (PL 102-526). The statute requires all Executive agencies, government offices and other originating bodies to transmit records related to the assassination of President Kennedy to the National Archives.

The records which will be made available were transferred to the National Archives pursuant to Sections 5(c)(1) and 5 (e)(1) of the statute which established a period of 300 days for Federal agencies to review assassination records and provide for the transfer of records released in full. Material from the following agencies will be available for research on August 23, 1993.

- Warren Commission records, previously opened and newly released
- House Select Committee on Assassinations (approximately 800 boxes)
- Central Intelligence Agency, previously opened and newly released
- Kennedy, Johnson and Ford Presidential libraries, previously opened and newly released, including records from the Rockefeller Commission
- Records of other agencies

National Archives clean-search room rules do not allow personal property, i.e. notebooks, briefcases, purses or fountain pens, in the research rooms. Debt cards can be purchased for the photocopying machines.

ELECTRONIC MEDIA AND PHOTOGRAPHERS: Filming will be allowed in the research room until 12 p.m.
NO ARTIFICIAL LIGHT. NO INTERVIEWS ALLOWED IN THE RESEARCH ROOM.
