ADMINISTRATIVE DATA:

JOSEPH GALLO mentioned herein is subject of New York file 92-657, Baltimore file 92-509, and BUfile 92-7034.

By letter dated 1/22/65, to New Haven with copies to New York and Baltimore, Philadelphia furnished the following information under the caption "DAVID ROBERT IACOVETTI, aka ITWI, OO:NEW HAVEN." Mr. JAMES GREEN, Chief Inspector of the Pure Food and Drug Administration, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, furnished information to Philadelphia indicating that an informant of his had gone to New York City where DAVID ROBERT IACOVETTI of Trumbull, Connecticut, a button man in the Mafia, had resolved a difficulty in which the informant was involved concerning the payment for purchase of stolen cigars. GREEN had also mentioned that IACOVETTI was friendly with ROBERT DAVID CORCORAN of Baltimore, Maryland, and had been arrested in Baltimore in connection with beating up bookmakers.

Philadelphia referred to the specific arrest of IACOVETTI by Baltimore PD on 3/18/60, and commented that IACOVETTI's activities in the Baltimore area appear to be consistent with previously developed information that the CARLO GAMBINO "family" of La Cosa Nostra in New York City maintains control of the members in the Baltimore area.

For the information of receiving offices, no indication has been received by Baltimore that IACOVETTI has been active in the Baltimore area since his arrest in 1960.

LUIGI MORICI, the boss in Baltimore
JOSEPH GIGLIOTTI
FRANK MALVASO
CHARLIE BARBERA
MARIO ANELLO
FRANK CORBI
JIMMY CARONA, also known as Jimmy Russo

Informant stated he recalled that his father had told him that PATSY CORBI, brother of FRANK CORBI, had been a member of the Mafia in West Virginia. Informant believed that FRANK CORBI is a member of La Cosa Nostra because of his close association with LUIGI MORICI. He also felt that FRANK CORBI would have to be a member since he heard that he was shaking down his nephew, EDDIE CORBI, the bondsman on Baltimore Street.

Informant stated that JOSEPH GIGLIOTTI had been active in the numbers rackets in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania prior to 20 years ago, but had been run out of Pittsburgh by other racketeers. GIGLIOTTI had been friendly with the VOLPE brothers in Pittsburgh, who were murdered about that time. GIGLIOTTI had been tried for a killing in the Pittsburgh area, but not convicted and informant believed he is considered a "gun" for La Cosa Nostra. Informant commented that it is a mark of dishonor for an Italian to have his face cut and that he believed GIGLIOTTI had also taken part in this type of criminal activity. He said that he had no proof or even any particular incident in mind, but he suspected that GIGLIOTTI may have made trips out of Baltimore for the purpose of carrying out some sentence of La Cosa Nostra.

On October 21, 1965, Confidential Informant BA T-1 advised that GIACOMO ROMANO, also known as Jimmie Romano, 1 Riverside Drive, Essex, Maryland, had referred to the age and illness of LUIGI MORICI and stated that "we are a family without a father." He had said that his leaders were then JIMMY RUSSO, also known as Jimmy Carona, and one of the CORBI brothers who operate on "The Block", Baltimore night club district. Informant therefore assumed that these persons were members of a local Italian syndicate.
