Arkansas Native Communities

There was a great deal movement of Native People from, to and across Arkansas in the early nineteenth century. Therefore, in order to perform a simple search of the GENERAL records of Arkansas’ Native People in the National Archives Online Catalog it is best to focus on National Park Service historic place applications, Osage and Quapaw records before 1824, and records of the Five Civilized Tribes as they traveled across Arkansas. Use the following search terms: Removal (Advanced Search, using Record Group 75) and “Arkansas Indian” (include quotation marks). The much broader search, Arkansas Indian, will have to be narrowed further by date range and document type.

There are several great resources available for general information and material for kids about the Native People of Arkansas, such as the Native Languages and National Museum of the American Indian websites. Type Arkansas into the main search box for both.

Related state agencies and universities may also hold records or information about these communities. Examples might include the Arkansas State Archives, the Arkansas Archeological Survey, and the Sequoyah Research Center.

Always be willing to experiment with search terms. Quoted phrases return very different results than non-quoted phrases. Using the geographic location or most relevant word(s) from the tribal name with one of the following words may also prove beneficial: Indian (most useful), Native, Tribe, Reservation, or Village. Be sure to link to modern tribal pages. They contain current information and more possible search terms.

Kansas Native Communities

To perform a simple search of the GENERAL records of Kansas’ Native People in the National Archives Online Catalog use the following search term: “Kansas Indian” (include quotation marks). The much broader search, Kansas Indian (no quotation marks) will have to be narrowed further by date range and document type.

There are several great resources available for general information and material for kids about the Native People of Kansas, such as the Native Languages and National Museum of the American Indian websites. Type Kansas into the main search box for both.

Related state agencies and universities may also hold records or information about these communities. Examples might include the Kansas Historical Society (see Catalog of Kansas State and Territorial Documents), and the Haskell Indian Nations University History Page.

Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) Records (Record Group 75):
To focus on BIA records in the Online Catalog, use “advanced search” and enter 75 into the Record Group field.

Although important, the BIA is only one of many Federal agencies containing important records of Native Communities. For various reasons there are often periods of time where BIA records are not available for individual tribes. Other techniques should be used for these periods, such as searching by geographic area and/or time-period and widening the search to include ALL Federal agencies.

Community records could also be “buried” in BIA agency files not described in the Online Catalog in great enough detail to be searched directly by community name. Doing an advanced search using one or two words from the BIA office name or the entire office name in quotes, along with Record Group 75, may be beneficial. Missouri Native Communities

Because “Missouri” is the name of a specific tribe from this state and a common given name among the Five Civilized Tribes, it is difficult to perform a simple search of the GENERAL records of Missouri’s Native People in the National Archives Online Catalog. Native People from this state were driven out early in the nineteenth century. Others were moved here and then moved out again. Because of this, look for Native People listed in the Historic section below or focus on specific geographic areas within the state using a search as “Cape Girardeau” indigenous. (Cape Girardeau was a historic Trading Post in Missouri.)

There are several great resources available for general information and material for kids about the Native People of Missouri, such as the Native Languages and National Museum of the American Indian websites. Type Missouri into the main search box for both.

Related state agencies and universities may also hold records or information about these communities. Examples might include the Missouri State Archives, the State Historical Society of Missouri, and the University of Missouri “Peace Studies” Program.

Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) Records (Record Group 75):

To focus on BIA records in the Online Catalog, use “advanced search” and enter 75 into the Record Group field.

Although important, the BIA is only one of many Federal agencies containing important records of Native Communities. For various reasons there are often periods of time where BIA records are not available for individual tribes. Other techniques should be used for these periods, such as searching by geographic area and/or time-period and widening the search to include ALL Federal agencies.

Community records could also be “buried” in BIA agency files not described in the Online Catalog in great enough detail to be searched directly by community name. Doing an advanced search using one or two words from the BIA office name or the entire office name in quotes, along with Record Group 75, may be beneficial. Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) Records (Record Group 75):
To focus on BIA records in the Online Catalog, use “advanced search” and enter 75 into the Record Group field.

Although important, the BIA is only one of many Federal agencies containing important records of Native Communities. For various reasons there are often periods of time where BIA records are not available for individual tribes. Other techniques should be used for these periods, such as searching by geographic area and/or time-period and widening the search to include ALL Federal agencies.

Community records could also be “buried” in BIA agency files not described in the Online Catalog in great enough detail to be searched directly by community name. Doing an advanced search using one or two words from the BIA office name or the entire office name in quotes, along with Record Group 75, may be beneficial. Some BIA offices known to hold Seneca-Cayuga Nation records follow:
