Periodically, NARA staff publishes articles in order to expand research community awareness of NARA's holdings. By targeting state and local historical and genealogical societies with articles about the agency's holdings, we hope to reach people who otherwise would not think of the National Archives as a resource for their research. During the past few months, the staff has published the following:

Deeben, John (published):

El Coqui de Ayer is the newsletter of the Puerto Rican/Hispanic Genealogical Society.

“Researching Hispanic Volunteers in the Civil War: A Primer for Military Service Records at the National Archives” (Nuestras Raíces: Journal of the Genealogical Society of Hispanic America 19:2 (Summer 2007): 12–20)

Microfilm Publications

Staff members continue to process accessioned microfilm that documents arrivals into the United States, turning this film into National Archives microfilm publications. During the last quarter, staff completed the following National Archives microfilm publications:

Reference Reports

Staff members produce many one-page reference reports, directing researchers to NARA microfilm publications, textual records, NARA's web site, and printed government documents pertaining to numerous research topics. The reports are extremely useful for first-time researchers as a method to explain the types of records that are available for research, as well as for suggesting a research path that can be tailored to the individual's need.

Reports fall into several general categories, including Native Americans, African Americans, Asian Americans, residents of the District of Columbia, Military Service, Citizenship, Hispanics, Immigration, Census, and Civilian Federal Employees. Each category is color-coded for ease of reference. The following reference reports were completed during the last quarter:

African Americans (salmon paper)
- Microfilmed Records of the Freedmen's Bureau for Virginia, 1865–72

Citizenship (pink paper)
- Records of the Department of State Relating to Deaths of U.S. Citizens in Foreign Countries, 1789–1974

Native Americans (lilac paper)
- Finding Native American Employees of the Bureau of Indian Affairs in the Official Register of the United States, 1849–1925

Data Collection Sheets

Staff members produced several new data collection sheets, which correspond to the 1885 State/Territorial Population, Mortality, Agricultural, and Manufacturing censuses. These items will be especially great companions for the following microfilm publications:

- Colorado (M158)
- Florida (M845)
- Nebraska (M352)
- New Mexico (M846)
Carlisle Indian Industrial School Student Files

The student files for the Carlisle Indian Industrial School are name-searchable in ARC. The student files include letters received, copies of letters sent, applications for enrollment, cards designated as “Descriptive and Historical Record of Student,” promotion certificates (including ratings in subjects), records of “outings,” medical and dental records, form reports concerning post-school careers, records from other schools, information forms concerning eligibility for Federal aid, clippings, photographs, and other records concerning individual students. The records relate to enrollment, transportation, progress at school, “outings,” health, financial affairs, withdrawals from school, careers after leaving school, special problems, and other subjects.

Quantity and type of records for individual students vary; there are, in general, more records for the later years than the earlier ones. A few post-1918 records, added after the records were transferred to the Bureau, relate mainly to requests for information. There are separate folders for individual students, which are arranged numerically. Although there is some chronological and alphabetical pattern in the order of the folder numbers, it is necessary to use the ARC index to locate readily the records for a particular student.

U.S. Coast Guard Records Identified as Permanent

NARA staff members Sue McDonough and Mark Mollan went to the U.S. Coast Guard’s Navigation Central Facility in Alexandria, VA, to identify permanent records relating to the OMEGA navigation system, a LORAN-based system used before our current GPS systems. Valuable series were identified, including records relating to international OMEGA stations in Africa and Asia. Mark also assisted Coast Guard historian Bob Browning and Chief John Evans, U.S. Coast Guard Military Personnel Division, and NARA appraisal office’s Jennie Guilbaud in securing authority to accession a series of index cards (aka Birthday Cards). These cards index by name every member of the Revenue Cutter Service and the Coast Guard from 1900 to the 1990s, including information such as date of enlistment and special honors.

Summer 2007 Researchers Break All Records

Traditionally, the busiest months of the year for the Textual Research Room (Room 2000) at the National Archives in College Park, MD (Archives II), have been June, July, and August. The summer of 2007 was no exception. Room 2000 broke all records for research demand during the summer weeks of extended hours.

Research room staff pulled and refiled unprecedented amounts of textual materials for researchers this summer. Statistics in FY 2007 averaged approximately 123 pulls per day during regular (non-extended) NARA research hours. For several years, the all-time record for the most pulls in a single day was 217. However, during this year's summer extended hours, the research demand easily eclipsed this mark every month. The new record for pulls now stands at 272, set on July 19. The addition of five much-needed full-time permanent staff members in June—along with several summer students—greatly helped the Textual Research Room staff meet the summer challenge.

During the entire week of July 16–21, 2007, NARA College Park recorded 1,029 daily visits of textual researchers. This was the first time in NARA history during which over 1,000 people visited the Textual Research Room—or any NARA research room, for that matter—in a single week.

Disruption to Services at The National Archives, UK

If you are planning a visit to The National Archives, UK, between the autumn of 2007 and the spring of 2008, you may want to contact them first at www.nationalarchives.gov.uk or at Tel: +44 (0) 20 8876 3444.

The National Archives, located at Kew, Richmond, Surrey, TW9 4DU, London, will be hiring a building contractor to make changes to the existing building. As a result:

- The on-site services at Kew will be disrupted from autumn 2007 to spring 2008. The National Archives staff will make every effort to maintain full service during this period, but there may be unavoidable delays and disruption.
- Kew will be closed to the public December 1–16, 2007, and again the week of January 21, 2008.
- Online services will not be affected.
Meet Our Staff

John Deeben

John P. Deeben is a genealogy archives specialist with the Research Support Branch (NWCC1) at the National Archives Building in Washington, DC. John provides research orientations for visiting genealogy and student groups, and frequently lectures and writes about Federal records of genealogical interest. He has spoken at conferences of the National Genealogical Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, National Institute on Genealogical Research, and the National War of 1812 Symposium. His articles have appeared in numerous genealogical journals and magazines, including Prologue, New England Ancestors, NGS NewsMagazine, New Mexico Genealogist, and Nuestras Raíces (Journal of the Genealogical Society of Hispanic America). He also serves as a board member of the Lutheran Historical Society of the Mid-Atlantic, and has transcribed and published several volumes of church records from Northumberland County, Pennsylvania.

John joined the staff of NWCC1 in January 2003 as an archives technician. He holds B.A. and M.A. degrees in American History from Gettysburg College and The Pennsylvania State University. Prior to joining NARA, John worked as a senior data facilitator for the Geisinger Health System in Danville, Pennsylvania.

Tom Fortunato

Tom Fortunato joined the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) in 1988 as the Sales Operations Manager for the National Archives Museum Shop in Washington, DC. Prior to coming into government service, Tom worked in the private sector in sales and as an owner/manager of four natural food restaurants. He is currently the customer service coordinator for the Customer Service Division.

The Customer Service staff and Customer Service Centers are responsible for researcher registration and orientation, and answer and refer written and telephone inquiries and those received through NARA’s online requests. They are the initial point of contact for all on-site and remote researcher-related services and, in that capacity, are also the focus of any customer-service issues that arise.

Tom is a member of GSA’s Citizen Service Levels Inter-agency Committee (CSLIC), responsible for recommending customer service guidelines to Federal agencies. He has received several customer service achievement awards through the years, including the 2003 Archivist’s Special Achievement Award for Outstanding Service to NARA External Customers.
Know Your Records

In the fall of 2004, the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) introduced the Know Your Records program. The initial program offered weekly lectures and monthly genealogy workshops to staff, volunteers, and the public. Featured speakers described NARA’s records, explained how and where to locate the records, and demonstrated how to use the records for research.

Currently, each one-hour lecture is usually delivered twice within the same week—on Tuesdays at the National Archives Building at 700 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW, Washington, DC, and on Thursdays at the National Archives (Archives II), located at 8601 Adelphi Road, College Park, MD. Most of these sessions are videotaped and made available for interlibrary loan through NARA libraries and our regional facilities throughout the United States. Some, but not all, of the genealogy workshops are offered on Saturdays.

In addition to providing opportunities for staff, volunteers, and researchers to learn about NARA’s records through lectures and genealogy workshops, we offer symposia, the annual genealogy fair, quarterly editions of Researcher News, and the From the Records Book Group discussions. For book group news, see page 14.

We publicize our offerings in NARA’s Calendar of Events at www.archives.gov/calendar/ and on our web page at www.archives.gov/dc-metro/know-your-records/

11 a.m. An Overview of the JFK Assassination Records Collection, James Mathis (Speaker)
Noon Death of a Generation: How the Assassinations of Diem and JFK Prolonged the Vietnam War, by Howard Jones (Ken Kato, Moderator)

Based on recently declassified hearings by the Church Committee on the U.S. role in assassinations, newly released tapes of Kennedy White House discussions and interviews with those in the president’s inner circle, the author maintains that Kennedy firmly believed that the outcome of the war depended on the South Vietnamese. In 1962, Kennedy instructed Secretary of Defense McNamara to draft a withdrawal plan aimed at having all special military forces home by the end of 1965. Jones maintains that if Kennedy had lived, his withdrawal plan would have spared the lives of 58,000 Americans and countless Vietnamese.

December 2007, January 2008 – No Book Group

2008 Schedule

In 2008, the From the Records Book Group will meet on the third Tuesday of February, March, April, September, October, and November. We will meet at 11 a.m. in Room G-24, National Archives Building, for a lecture or film relating to the book and then, at noon, for the book discussion.
From the moment he landed in Paris on May 21, 1927, Lindbergh found himself thrust into the limelight of the media. Berg casts a new light on Lindbergh’s childhood; his astonishing flight; the kidnapping of his son; his fascination with Hitler’s Germany; and his unsung work in his later years.

Author A. Scott Berg is the first and only writer to have been given unrestricted access to the massive Lindbergh archives—more than 2,000 boxes of personal papers, including reams of unpublished letters and diaries. He also was allowed to freely interview Lindbergh’s friends, colleagues, and family members, including his children and his widow, Anne Morrow Lindbergh. The result is a story of a life long blurred by myth and half-truth.

These Honored Dead: How the Story of Gettysburg Shaped American Memory

by Thomas A. Desjardin, Robert Pigeon (Editor)

Ever since the battle of Gettysburg ended and Lincoln delivered his famous two-minute speech remembering those who had given their lives, this three-day conflict in 1863 has become an American legend. We remember Gettysburg as, perhaps, the biggest, bloodiest, and most important battle ever fought in the Civil War. How much truth is behind the legend? Desjardin, a prominent Civil War historian and a perceptive cultural observer, demonstrates how flawed our knowledge of this enormous event has become, and why. He examines how Americans have shaped and altered our national memory, fashioning the story of Gettysburg as a reflection of, and testimony to, our culture and our nation.

All You Need Is Love: The Peace Corps and the Spirit of the 1960s, by Elizabeth Cobbs Hoffman

Everyone has heard of the Peace Corps, and that’s no accident. When the agency was started in the early days of the Kennedy Administration, one of the top priorities was making it known virtually overnight, and some of the most talented advertising professionals in America donated their expertise to publicizing it. With John F. Kennedy’s brother-in-law, Sargent Shriver, as director, the Peace Corps represented the high ideals of a crucial decade in American history. Elizabeth Cobbs Hoffman, a professor of American foreign relations at San Diego State University, details the first decade of the Peace Corps, focusing on the struggles to create the agency, the political skill that made it flourish, and the influence of the Vietnam War.

by John C. Dann (Editor)

A fascinating selection of information based on the testimony of embattled farmers who tell us in their own words what they saw with their own eyes. The Revolution Remembered uses 79 firsthand accounts from veterans of the war to provide the reader with the feel of what it must have been like to fight and live through America's bloody battle for independence. The military pension records at the National Archives provide an important source for this book.

Spying on the Bomb: American Nuclear Intelligence from Nazi Germany to Iran and North Korea, by Jeffrey T. Richelson

Richelson traces the evolution of U.S. nuclear intelligence efforts—both successes and failures—from the early days of World War II to the 21st century. The author focuses on the early nuclear programs of 15 nations and the U.S. effort to determine if they were trying to acquire nuclear weapons, how far they had gotten, and their attempts to improve those capabilities. Thus, the book examines the work of the CIA and other intelligence agencies in identifying and providing the details about those nuclear programs, as well as the agencies' efforts to monitor and evaluate nuclear testing—rather than their efforts to gather information on the nuclear arsenals. Each of the 14 chapters focuses on the nuclear activities of one or a small number of nations. Richelson draws on recently declassified documents and interviews with scientists and spies involved in nuclear espionage. His analysis of our nation's nuclear espionage includes spy-satellite photographs from the National Archives.

Lost Museum: The Nazi Conspiracy to Steal the World's Greatest Works of Art, by Hector Feliciano

During the occupation of Paris, the Nazis confiscated nearly 100,000 artworks from more than 200 collectors, transporting most of the spoils to Germany. The most extensive and valuable collections belonged to five renowned Jewish families: Rosenberg, Rothschild, Schloss, David-Weill and Bernheim-Jeune. After the war, many works that were found were returned to their owners. But a large number had disappeared, been destroyed, or spirited out of Europe into the underground art market.

Drawing on recently declassified government archives and information provided by the heirs of the collections, Feliciano traces the fate of the artworks. Two thousand of these stolen artworks have been identified in the Louvre and other French national museums, fomenting a scandal that has received front-page coverage throughout Europe and spurred a series of new claims and suits by heirs. In this updated and enlarged American edition, he reveals the location of stolen works hanging in major U.S. museums, as well.
