Scope and Content

The materials in this series are a selective, not necessarily all-inclusive, body of documents responsive to the topic of FOIA request 2014-0040-F.

This series contains records related to the Gore-Chernomyrdin Commission (GCC) meeting held in June 1994 in Washington, D.C. The Gore-Chernomyrdin Commission formally known as the U.S. – Russian Joint Commission on Economic and Technological Cooperation was a collaborative effort established by President Bill Clinton and Russian President Boris Yelstin after their April 1993 summit meeting in Vancouver, Canada to increase cooperation in space, energy, business development, defense conversion, the environment, science and technology, health, and agriculture. Vice President Al Gore and Russian Prime Minister Victor Chernomyrdin were appointed and served as co-chairmen and the Commission derives its name from both individuals.

These materials consist of a schedule outlining the sequence of meeting events, White House press releases which describe the progress and efforts of the Gore-Chernomyrdin Commission as well as copies of agreements and statements signed by Vice President Gore, Prime Minister Chernomyrdin, and committee chairs pertaining to six areas: space, energy, science and technology, defense conversion, environment, and business development. The inclusive date range for this series of records is 1994.

Due to national security restrictions, the majority of this collection remains closed including memoranda, talking points, and committee reports and papers.
