

NATIONAL ARCHIVES

1934–2009

Your Neighborhood's Best Kept Secret

The National Archives at Seattle

A workshop for family and community historians

Wednesday, October 28, 2009

6:00 to 7:30 PM

The Seattle Public Library, North East Branch

6801 35th Ave. N.E.

Seattle, WA 98115

Ever wonder what is in that huge building on Sand Point Way?

Carol Buswell, the Education Specialist for the National Archives at Seattle, will present copies from some of the 37,000 cubic feet of original government documents and 7,500 rolls of microfilm held for public access in their facility. She also will present methods for finding records, both on-site and online.

Prepare to be amazed! This is a wonderful resource for any present or future historical research project.

For more information, contact:

The National Archives at Seattle

6125 Sand Point Way NE, Seattle, WA 98115, Phone: 206-336-5115, e-mail: seattle.archives@nara.gov