the National Archives web site.
The winner will be Chosen by the Archivist of the United States.

CATEGORIES: Graphic Works, Poetry, and Multimedia

JUDGES: Graphic Art - Michael Philip Mannheim Artist and Original Documerica Photographer

Video - Cokie Roberts, Author & News Analyst, NPR & ABC News

Poetry - Sandra Alcosser, Poet, Author, and Professor

In the 1970s,
the Environmental Protection Agency hired freelance photographers to capture environmental issues and challenges in the United States. Forty years later, we are still concerned with how we treat the world we live in. The National Archives invites students ages 13 and up to seek inspiration from one of the 15,000 Documerica photographs at the National Archives and create the next generation of Documerica records. Snap a photo, write a poem, design a graphic, or create a multimedia video to share your point of view on the state of the environment

Submissions accepted 11.1.11 - 1.6.12

Winners and Finalist Announced late January 2012
