Highlights:

- NARA joined the Flickr Commons, a web site for cultural institutions to share their photograph collections with the public.
- Our Archives wiki launched on July 8, 2010, encouraging citizen archivists to contribute their expertise and guidance on a wiki along with NARA staff.
- “History Happens Here” augmented reality project has launched! Mashup photos have been taken and posted to a Flickr group, encouraging user participation.
- NARAtions blog began two new regular series: “What Are You Working On? Wednesdays,” to feature and interview NARA staff members, as well as “NARA Coast-to-Coast,” highlighting interesting records from across the Regions.

Buzz:

- Resourceshelf.com commends NARA’s creation of over 40 topical sets of Mathew Brady images in Flickr, and geotagging nearly all the images in the collection. Machine tags have also been generated for all Flickr images to facilitate data mashups by mapping the images to ARC IDs.
- The Budget Brainstorm IdeaScale forum garnered a stunning 20,000 votes from NARA staff.
- Various blogs and universities promoted the launch of Federal Register 2.0 site.
- The DocsTeach website for educators using primary materials is featured on the AHA blog.
