

The Big Picture* – Pictorial Report Number 33

Announcer: The United States Army presents The Big Picture, an official report produced for the armed forces and the American people. Now, to show you part of The Big Picture, here is Sergeant Stuart Queen.

Sergeant Stuart Queen: It has long been the firm and established policy of the American government to inform the people of this country how the Army is fulfilling its mission. In reporting to our citizens, the Public Information Program of the Army utilizes all modern media: television, with this Big Picture series as well as other programs; film newsreels; newspapers; and periodicals. But for many thousands of Americans, one of the most valuable contacts comes through the work of the Army Exhibit Unit. At state fairs, trade shows, industry exhibitions, and other large indoor and outdoor public events, the Exhibit Unit mounts vivid displays of the Army at work. We will see some of these displays and the fascinating complex of art, show business, and military know-how behind their preparation in our Big Picture story of the Army Exhibit Unit.

Narrator: Before your eyes, the stirring panorama of a nation: its youth, its heartache, its steady growth toward greatness. Another moment of history memorialized, a lunging desperate charge with weapons ready. It is almost as though we can hear the rumble of the artillery...
